New Hampshire Lottery To Be Decided Today

Governor May Sign Or Veto New Measure

Pressure Mounts For Sweepstakes To Raise Revenue

By GORDON A. GLOVER

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Gov. John W. King will announce Tuesday whether staid old New Hampshire will become the first state in modern times to legalize a sweepstakes.

Appearing before a joint session of the House and Senate, the Democratic governor will reveal whether he will sign a controversial sweepstakes bill, veto it, or permit it to become law without his signature.

King has given no hint of his plans, but his decision is certain to make news—and maybe even history.

Not since 1894, when the privately operated Louisiana lottery went out of business, has a sweepstakes or lottery been sanctioned by any of the states.

But legislatures in Massachusetts and Vermont are considering sweepstakes bills, and there is moutning pressure among revenue-hungry states elsewhere to legalize lotteries or in some way extend race track betting.

Supporters of the New Hampshire bill envision a state "take" of $4 million annually from two sweepstakes a year, based on horse races at Rockingham Park.

Under terms of the bill, all the state's proceeds would be earmarked for school support.

Sweepstakes bills are a perennial issue in the New Hampshire legislature, and they have always caused controversy.

The last time such a bill was passed by both the House and Senate was in 1955.

Gov. Lane Dwinell vetoed it, reportedly on the urgings of the Eisenhower administration.

Most State House observers believe King will sign the bill.

Losses Heavy In Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) —A U.S. military spokesman disclosed Monday that Communist Viet Cong guerrillas killed 55 Vietnamese soldiers in attacks on three government outposts in southernmost Viet Nam early last week. He said another 128 troops were missing.

North of Saigon, Communist guerrillas who virtually wiped out a 100-man South Vietnamese unit during the weekend appeared to have escaped pursuing government troops. A U.S. sergeant was killed in the Red assault on the fortified post at Vic Klum, about 320 miles north of Saigon.

Government military sources reported that 40 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed, 26 were wounded and 57 were missing in the battle. Communist losses were not known here, but unofficially were reported high.

The spokesman made no mention of Communist casualties in disclosing the attacks on three government outposts in An Xuyen Province, about 150 miles south of Saigon, last Monday and Tuesday.

Khrush Retirement Is Discounted

NEW YORK (UPI) — U. S. Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman came back from a mission to Moscow Monday and discounted speculation that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev might retire soon.

"I don't think he's going to step down," Harriman said. "I saw no indication of it. He seemed himself — talked as he always does. He didn't impress me as a man about to go out of power."

Special Grand Jury To Air Slaying Of Integration Hiker

GADSDEN, Ala. (AP) — Circuit Judge Virgil Pittman indicated Monday he will call a special session of the Etowah County grand jury in the rifle slaying of a Baltimore integrationist.

ACCUSED — Floyd Simpson, 40, rural storekeeper of near Gadsden, Ala., has been arrested on a murder warrant in connection with the rifle-slaying of William L. Moore, 34, Baltimore integrationist pilgrim. He was released under $5,000 bond pending court action. (AP Photofax)

Sheriff Dewey Colvard swore out a first-degree murder warrant against Floyd Simpson, charging the 40-year-old rural storekeeper in the slaying of William L. Moore, 34.

The crusading Baltimore postman was blasted to death on the second day of a planned hike from Chattanooga, Tenn., to Jackson, Miss., where he planned to air his views on segregation with Gov. Ross Barnett. Moore's body was found sprawled on a road near his northeast Alabama community last Tuesday night.

Simpson was released on $5,000 bond agreed to by Circuit Solicitor William W. Rayburn who waived preliminary hearing because he "didn't want to reveal the state's case just yet."

Discussing the case, Pittman said: "There will be no delays. There will be no railroading."

"When the investigations have been properly developed, an announcement on the call of the grand jury will be made, Pittman said.

"This court will proceed with deliberate speed and a conscious regard that the demand's of a deeply offended community and state be met with due and proper consideration given to the rights of the defendant under the law . . ."

Simpson was booked for murder Sunday after a state investigator returned from Washington, D.C., with a ballistics report on Simpson's .22 caliber rifle.

Simpson, father of six, is represented by William M. Beck Sr. of Fort Payne, Ala., a former Alabama House of Representatives speaker and close friend of arch segregtationist Gov. George Wallace.

France Plans Atom Missiles, Nuclear Subs

PARIS (UPI) —France will have nuclear - armed guided missiles with a 1,800-mile range—great enough to hit Moscow — by 1966 or 1967, Defense Minister Pierre Messmer said Monday.

By 1969, he said, French nuclear submarines, each carrying 16 missiles, will patrol the world's waters.

The French government is even studying the possibility of launching missiles from space platforms, he added.

The missiles will be aimed at the enemy's civilian population, not its military might, Messmer said. This, he said makes it a deterrent, rather than a striking force.

This plan is "irreversible and will guide the destiny of France for a long time," Messmer said in a detailed, dramatic article in his ministry's national defense review.

Messmer's article dispelled any speculation that President Charles de Gaulle is about to give up his "go-it-alone" nuclear policy and submerge his A-force in NATO.

De Gaulle repeatedly hammered on France's need for its own nuclear force during his provincial tour last week.

Messmer, in a direct repudiation of U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's "controlled response" theory, said French H-bombs would be aimed at enemy cities and industrial centers—not rocket bases.

KUMAMOTO, Japan (UPI) — Four boys ranging in age from 5 to 6 were found dead Sunday night in an ice box where they had been playing hide-and-seek.

Racial Barrier In Courtrooms Is Illegal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court took another big desegregation step Monday declaring racial segregation in any courtroom is unconstitutional.

"State-compelled segregation in a court of justice is a manifest violation of the state's duty to deny no one the equal protection of its laws," the court said in an unsigned, unanimous opinion.

It reversed the 1962 contempt conviction of Ford T. Johnson for refusing to leave the section reserved for whites in a Richmond, Va., traffic court. The 21-year-old Negro now is a Peace Corps worker in Ghana.

In another major action touching on the racial issue, the high tribunal decided to consider whether Gov. Ross R. Barnett of Mississippi is entitled to a jury trial on federal contempt charges growing out of his efforts to keep a Negro out of his state's university.

Arguments probably will be called for around Oct. 14.

The case could have a big bearing on Mississippi politics if Barnett decides to run against Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., as he is reported contemplating.

The high court agreed also to hear the case of a Los Angeles book dealer convicted of selling the book "Tropic of Cancer," which a jury found to be obscene.

In the same field, the tribunal decided to hear new arguments on an Ohio law which makes it a crime to knowingly possess or exhibit obscene motion pictures. Earlier arguments were heard last month.

Soviet, Cuban Chiefs Begin Policy Talks

Khrushchev Takes Castro To Special Ballet Performance

By GEORGE SYVERTSEN

MOSCOW (AP) — Jauntily puffing a cigar, Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro talked power politics with Soviet Premier Khrushchev Monday across a Kremlin conference table.

The Russians gave no information on the discussion at which Khrushchev and his Cuban protege were believed to have discussed policy differences and possibly a Castro request for more Soviet aid to Cuba's shaky economy.

The volatile Cuban showed up for the 10 a.m. conference in his crumpled olive drab U.S. Army-style fatigue uniform and combat boots. Khrushchev wore a dark business suit.

Fidel Puffs On Cigar

Apparently oblivious to the nonsmoking Khrushchev's dislike of tobacco, Castro puffed heartily on his jumbo-sized Havana as they lined up for photographers.

The dozen conference participants then sat down in order of importance on opposite sides of a long table in a room adjoining Khrushchev's office.

Among those present were: Yuri Andropov, Central Committee secretary in charge of relations with Communists in Soviet bloc countries, Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, Emilio Aragones Navarro, head of Castro's United Socialist party, and the Cuban and Soviet ambassadors.

The conference broke up around midday for a lavish dinner in the Kremlin palace's Granovitaya Chamber, a 15th century hall sumptuously decorated with fresco paintings of Russia's tsars and saints.

Evening At Ballet

Castro also paid a formal call on President Leonid Brezhnev and laid a wreath at Lenin's tomb in Red Square.

Khrushchev escorted his visitors to a special ballet performance of "Swan Lake" at the Bolshoi Theater. Moscow television broadcast the show beginning with the two leaders' entrance in the government's ornately gilded box.

Castro will be the centerpiece at Wednesday's May Day parade in Red Square, where he received an elaborate welcome to Moscow Sunday.

Baby Boom Is Predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Census Bureau director has predicted a baby boom in the late 1960's.

Richard M. Scammon said the children who caused a high birth rate immediately after World War II, would not begin to get married. "In 1965, we're going to have about a million more youngsters reaching their 18th birthday than we have this year," he said.

"Suddenly we're going to have a great many new families—and new babies."

Scammon in a copyrighted interview in U.S. News & World Report, said the present birth rate has declined compared with the 1950's. It is not about 22 babies per thousand with about 4.2 million babies born in 1962.

Although he could not explain the decline, the director said the number of men called into the armed services and smaller sized families were two theories for the drop.

Mrs. Trelles holds her 2-day-old son, Modesto, Jr., as the proud father holds their other two children, Lillianna, 2, and Juan Carlos, 1, at right. "It's too bad that he couldn't have waited until today and been born an American," the father said of the new baby. (AP Photofax)

Laos Premier, Reds Will Open Crucial Parley

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma will go to the pro-Communist Pathet Lao headquarters of Khang Khay Tuesday for political talks with Pathet Lao leader Prince Souphanouvong that could disrupt the coalition government.

The talks originally were to have concerned the cease-fire on the Plain of Jars but Souphanouvong has demanded a reassessment of the entire political situation in Laos. Political observers fear such talks may open old wounds and wreck the shaky government.

No fighting has been reported between the neutralist and the pro-Communist factions for several days, but the Communists have filled the airwaves with propaganda accusing the United States of flying right-wing reinforcements to renew the civil war.

New Telstar May Bring Japanese TV To Americans

NEW YORK (UPI) — Scientists will attempt to rocket a second Telstar communications satellite into space from Cape Canaveral next week on a journey that may bring Japanese television live to American screens for the first time, it was announced here Monday.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Co., in announcing the launching, said the satellite would be hurled into orbit atop a slender 90-foot Delta rocket no earlier than May 7. The Delta launch vehicle has scored 16 successful satellite orbits in its last 16 launchings.

The second Telstar will carry special radiation protection devices and will be placed into an orbit where it will meet less radiation than Telstar I. Radiation knocked out a transistor and silenced the signal of the first Telstar on Feb. 21. The satellite was launched July 10, 1962.

Young Grandmother

WARNDON, England (UPI) — Mrs. Dreen Hodgkins became a grandmother this week at the age of 33 and said she hopes to be a great-grandmother by the time she is 50. "I think I stand a good chance," she said.

675 More Refugees Arrive From Cuba

PORT EVERGLADES, Fla. (UPI) — Six-hundred-seventy-five more Cuban refugees, seasick but glad of freedom, sailed here Monday telling of new terror and increasing unrest in their homeland.

They told of a "campaign of extermination" against guerrilla bands battling the Fidel Castro regime, a "saturation" of Russians in some areas, and of paying $20 on the black market for a pair of shoes for a three-year-old.

A woman lawyer, Mrs. Eduardo Castillo, said most Cubans are "elated" over Premier Castro's trip to Russia — "They hope he will stay there forever."

But she also said that although perhaps 90 per cent of the people in Cuba are against the Castro regime, "our only hope is the United States. There is no chance for a successful uprising."

There were persistent rumors as the 10,000-ton, black - hulled vessel docked at this port 20 miles north of Miami just after noon that several of Castro's militia officers had defected and were stowed away aboard the American Surveyor.

But immigration officials, the Red Cross and the captain of the freighter, Capt. Ernest Koran, denied these reports.

Red Cross workers who flew to Havana during the weekend to aid the refugees on the overnight voyage here said the 18-hour crossing was the roughest by far of the four mercy voyages bringing refugees out of Cuba on the return trip from delivering prisoner ransom supplies to the Castro regime.

Rusk In Karachi For CENTO Talks

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk arrived Monday for a meeting of the Central Treaty Organization (CENTO) and discussions with Pakistani President Mohammad Ayub Khan aimed at quelling increasing anti-American sentiments here.

The wave of anti-Americanism was stirred by the shipments of U.S. arms to India during the border war with Communist China. There were angry demands that Pakistan withdraw from CENTO in protest against the military buildup of the New Delhi government with which it has been involved for years in a dispute over Kashmir.

High Court Will Decide Barnett Jury Question

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court agreed Monday to rule next fall on whether Gov. Ross R. Barnett should be given a jury trial on the government's criminal contempt charges stemming from the University of Mississippi rioting.

The court announced it would hear arguments on the issue probably in a two-week period around Oct. 14. The arguments would provide the basis for the court's later decision.

Also involved in the case is Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson, Jr. Both Barnett and Johnson were accused of criminal contempt for interfering with the court-ordered registration of Negro James H. Meredith at the university and of failing to enforce law and order during the riots which left two dead and scores injured last September.

The jury question reached the Supreme Court rapidly because the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on a 4 to 4 split could not resolve the issue.

Soviet Terms A-Ban Talks 'Waste Of Time'

GENEVA (UPI) — The Soviet Union Monday ignored Anglo-American moves to break the impasse in the nuclear test ban talks and said the Geneva discussions are a "waste of time."

Both the United States and British delegates to the 17-nation disarmament conference urged the Soviets to respond favorably to the new Anglo - American initiative presented last week to Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in Moscow. President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan joined in appealing to Khrushchev to break the deadlock.

Haiti Bows To Demands Of Republic

Both Countries Agree To Accept OAS Peace Mission

By MARTIN P. HOUSEMAN

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI) —Haiti bowed to a demand from the Dominican Embassy in port Au Prince, the government announced Monday night.

The foreign office said the Haitian government had sent word that the lone Haitian policeman had been withdrawn from the Dominican Embassy grounds in Port Au Prince and guarantees were given for the safety of three diplomats and 21 other persons who had taken asylum there.

The announcement appeared to reduce sharply a threat of war that had been building up since Friday between the two nations which occupy the Caribbean island of Hispaniola.

Accept Mediation

Both Haiti and the Dominican Republic accepted the "good offices" of the Organization of American States (OAS) and said they would cooperate with a task force being sent to try to restore peace.

The United States announced in Washington it was withdrawing a naval training mission of 34 men from Haiti at the request of the Haitian government, but it said the request was made last Friday before the flareup.

So tense had the situation become before Monday night's announcement, the U.S. Navy declared itself ready to move "in hours if not minutes" either to evacuate the more than 1,000 American from the area or participate in any peacemaking.

The Dominican Republic had gone on a war footing, moving tanks and troops toward the border and warships to waters off Haiti. Troop leaves were canceled and the air force alerted.

About 300 demonstrators stoned the Haitian embassy Monday in Santo Domingo but police broke up the group with tear gas.

Mississippi Tornado Kills Five Persons

TUNICA, Miss. (AP) — A tornado hit the Moon Lake area south of Tunica Monday and civil defense officials reported five persons were killed.

The Tunica County civil defense director and sheriff's officers were reported on the scene, but no details were available from the rural area where the twister struck.

Moon Lake is about 40 miles southwest of Memphis, Tenn.

Meanwhile, another tornado was reported at Oxford, in north-central Mississippi. Civil defense offices in Jackson said the tornado hit at the northern city limits of Oxford and traveled eastward along State Highway 30 for about six miles. Some property damage but no injuries were reported.

Another tornado was reported at Lula, als in northern Mississippi. The Highway Department said some trees and power lines were felled. The department ordered equipment into the area.

Apalachin Figure, 5 Others Indicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A participant in the famous underworld meeting at Apalachin, N.Y., and five other New York men were indicted Monday on charges of evading taxes on more than $1 million in profits from the sale of stock in six Canadian corporations.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy announced that the seven count indictment, returned by a federal grand jury in Manhattan, named Carmine Lombardozzi, 50, of Brooklyn, and five others.

Lombardozzi was among those who attended a meeting of underworld leaders at Apalachin on Nov. 14, 1957.

Others named in the indictment were Stanley Younger, 33, Arthur Tortorello, 49; Louis DeFilippo, 42, George H. Wagner, 40, and Nathan Batterman, 43.

Rickover Rules Out Possibility Of Atom Blast Aboard Thresher

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP) — Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, the Navy's No. 1 atomic expert, Monday discounted any possibility of an explosion aboard the sunken submarine Thresher.

Rickover told a Navy Court of Inquiry it was physically impossible for the nuclear plant on the Thresher to explode like a bomb.

He also said the Thresher's atomic system, like that on other nuclear-powered vessels, was designed to forestall escape of atomic radiation.

Rickover, director of nuclear propulsion for the Navy and recognized as the father of the atomic submarine, testified before a navy court trying to determine what caused the loss of the Thresher April 10 with 129 men.

He said, "Reactors in submarines and surface ships are designed to minimize hazards under any condition. It is physically impossible for it to explode like a bomb."

He also said that "In the event of serious accident, fuel elements would remain intact and none would be released."

Rickover said there could be some escape of radiation "if the fuel elements were to melt or its boundary rupture," but he added that nuclear vessels are "designed to prevent any melting of the fuel elements."

He said the sea water around the sunken Thresher serves as a cooling agent "and provides further safeguards against melting of the fuel element."

Rickover also told the court that samples taken of the ocean bottom at the last known site of the Thresher show it to be free of radioactivity. He said the last sample was analyzed only Sunday afternoon and that the studies would continue.

The Thresher sank in 8,400 feet of water during a deep-sea test dive 220 miles off the Massachusetts coast.

Rickover said that in his job he is responsible for the design, manufacture, installation and maintenance of nuclear plants on Navy surface ships and submarines.

He said he is also responsible for the selection of the officers and men to serve on nuclear ships.

In a voluntary statement to the court, the admiral said of the men lost on the Thresher "I and members of my group knew many of the crew members personally and were responsible for their selection, training and encouragement.

"Everyone knows how I feel about the crew. It was a personal loss to me. We can only hope that in giving their lives to their country they contributed to our future safety. I fear for their wives, mothers, children and fathers."

After 12 minutes of testimony in open session, the court cleared the hearing room and heard Rickover discuss classified matter behind guarded doors.

The admiral's closed session testimony lasted 90 minutes and later he refused to answer any questions by newsmen.

Air-Ground Crews Hunt Missing Plane

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Twelve aircraft and three ground crews participated Monday in a Civil Air Patrol search in the Chesapeake Bay area for a plane and its pilot, missing since April 21.

Lt. Col. Arthur C. Robidoux said the ground crews were questioning residents of the Annapolis-North Beach area for possible leads. He said persons in the area might have sighted the plane in flight possibly provide information as to the aircraft's direction.

The pilot, Robert Brueckmann, 39, a Bureau of Standards scientist, landed at an airfield near Edgewater, Md., on the afternoon of April 21. After having lunch with a friend at Deale, he returned to the airport and took off in 25-knot winds.

Robidoux said an employe at the airport, Matthew Burger, warned Brueckmann about turbulent winds before he took off about 5 p.m. He was last seen headed in a northerly direction at an altitude of about 1,500 feet.

Burger reported that the two seater plane, which Breuckmann had owned for only a short time, was buffeting on take-off.

The man with whom Breuckman had lunch in Deale, Philip McKim, said the Kensington, Md., scientist had planned to go to the Eastern Shore.

"He told me he had been flying around all morning and planned to fly over the Eastern Shore to visit some other old friends, the Turneys," McKim said.

Mrs. William O. Turney of Bethesda, Md., said she did not know Brueckmann planned to visit the Turneys' place on the Eastern Shore and that he never arrived there.

Brueckmann started originally from Davis Airport near Laytonsville, in Montgomery County, about 9 a.m. on April 21st. He had about four hours of fuel. No flight plan was filed.

Robidoux said one person reported seeing a light plane diving without power toward Tilghman Island. The CAP was still investigating that report.

Sports Car Crash Fatal

WASHINGTON (AP)—A speeding sports car careened off George Washington Parkway early Monday, crashing into a stone retaining wall and killing the driver, Gordon James Trousdale, 27.

The first man to reach the scene told police he saw a car matching the one which was wrecked pass him at a speed of more than 100 miles an hour just before the crash.

Trousdale's car, a 1960 Jaguar, broke into two sections. The rear end hurtled 200 feet. The front end landed 25 feet from the roadway. Trees bore marks of debris 12 feet above the ground.

Trousdale was an assistant to Frank J. Murphy Jr., general chairman of the National Open Golf Tournament to be played at the Congressional Country Club here next year.

Leon Pearson, 63, NBC Newsman, Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Leon Pearson, 63, newsman and play reviewer for the National Broadcasting Co., died in his sleep Monday at Roosevelt Hospital.

Pearson had been convalescing from a heart attack he suffered April 18.

Pearson resided in White Plains, N.Y.

Survivors include his widow and three sons: Andrew, correspondent cameraman for NBC news in New Delhi; Paul, of Gaithersburg, Md., and Tom, of San Diego, Calif.

Nearby Homes Are Evacuated In Rail Wreck

Gas Escapes From Derailed Tank Cars

PERRYVILLE, Md. (AP) — Mildly toxic gas escaped from several derailed tank cars Monday, forcing evacuation of 20 residents of nearby homes and cancellation of classes for 350 pupils at Charlestown Elementary School.

Twenty-one cars of a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train overturned. But the Pennsy said nearly normal passenger travel would be resumed by late in the day and freight traffic would start moving as soon as the passenger jam had cleared.

The derailment blocked both tracks of the PRR main line between New York and Washington. No one was injured in the wreck but damage to overhead power lines and trackage was heavy.

Four wrecker trains — from Baltimore, Wilmington and Philadelphia — started to clear away the damage, helped by contractors using bulldozers and highway cranes.

Three of the derailed cars caught fire and broke open and carbon disulphide, which is slightly toxic, spilled along the tracks. Some fumes lingered over the wreckage but a spokesman for the PRR said most of the chemical had dissipated.

Firemen from Charlestown, North East and Perryville put out the fire and built an earth dike around the area to contain the spilled chemicals.

Workmen at the scene were gathering information in an effort to determine the cause of the derailment. The locomotive was pulling 161 cars, 113 of which were loaded. The train had been made up in Wilmington and was en route to Washington and points south.

Firemen said high-powered electrical lines became entangled in the jumbled wreckage, delaying efforts to extinguish the fire until the power could be cut off.

Haiti Bows

ernment complied with the Dominican demands, the U.S. Embassy here had gone into phase two of four graduated stages prior to evacuation — a standard worldwide procedure.

Stage one was an order for food hoarding. Stage two is notification to stand by for possible evacuation.

The foreign office announced that Venezuela had offered the Dominican Republic full armed support in its long-standing quarrel with the Haitian regime of dictatorial president Francois Duvalier. Venezuela's President Romulo Betancourt was said to have made the offer in a personal phone call to Dominican President Juan Bosch.

The Organization of American States, in an emergency move to head off fighting, invoked the inter-American mutual defense treaty and voted to send a five-man committee to the island.

The Dominican government threatened, in a virtual ultimatum, to take armed action against Haiti by 8 p.m. Monday night unless Haitian troops were removed from the Dominican Embassy in Port Au Prince.

But the deadline, extended originally 12 hours on appeal of the OAS, appeared likely to be extended further. Reports from Washington said the OAS group, apparently because of transportation problems, could not leave for Port Au Prince Monday as originally planned.

Despite the threatening official attitude locally, the general belief here was that there would be no armed clash between the two nations. Santo Domingo itself was outwardly calm.

There was no surface indication of a nation getting ready to go to war.

Dominican Foreign Minister Andres Freitas told UPI "the Dominican Republic will take whatever action is necessary to defend the national sovereignty."

Although Dominican officials gave every indication of a desire to square accounts with Haiti as quickly as possible, Freitas emphasized the government's first concern was to get the 22 Haitian political refugees harbored in the Dominican embassy in Port Au Prince, out of that country.

Dominican officials expressed disappointment at the OAS departure delay from Washington for Port Au Prince. They also were disappointed at indications in Washington that the United States would quit the five member-nation committee because of the long-standing differences between the Washington and Port Au Prince governments.

However, it was believed the Dominicans would extend the deadline of their ultimatum to Haiti as long as necessary — perhaps 24 hours — to allow the OAS group a chance to get to Haiti.

Supreme Court Upholds Killer's Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court decided Monday a Baltimore man was denied a constitutional right because an attorney was not named to aid him at a preliminary Police Court hearing at which he pleaded guilty to a robbery-murder.

Robert Galloway White, under death sentence in the 1960 killing of a 67-year-old grocer, contended he should have had the benefit of counsel at every stage of proceedings against him.

The Supreme Court's decision was announced in a unanimous, unsigned opinion.

After pleading guilty in the death of the Baltimore grocer, Benjamin Ingber, White at further proceedings pleaded not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity. The trial court appointed three lawyers to defend White at his trial in February, 1961. They did not object to admission at the trial of testimony about White's plea of guilty at the preliminary hearing.

Maryland's Court of Appeals, in upholding White's conviction, said he had "an extensive history of violent and other crimes" and was familiar with Maryland judicial processes. White's appeal to the high court contended he had been denied due process of law.

It did not appear that the case would have statewide ramifications for all such defendants.

Robert Sweeney, Maryland assistant attorney general who argued the case before the Supreme Court, said in Annapolis:

"From what we now know, it would appear only to pertain to this particular case. Under the unusual facts of the case, the petitioner's original guilty plea was refused by the trial magistrate but nonetheless entered against him at the trial. We believe that our reaction is borne out by the opinion in this case."

The Supreme Court cited a Nov. 13, 1961 decision in an Alabama case as the basis for the ruling on White's appeal.

In the 1961 case the high court said that in Alabama the processes of criminal law were such that an attorney had to be appointed to represent a poor defendant at his arraignment when he was charged with a capital offense.

The question in White's case was whether the preliminary hearing in Maryland was of such importance that White had to have an attorney. On this point the Supreme Court said:

"Whatever may be the normal function of the preliminary hearing under Maryland law, it was in this case as critical a stage as arraignment under Alabama law. For petitioner (White) entered a plea before the magistrate and that plea was taken at a time when he had no counsel."

BPW ENTERTAIN — The Cumberland Business and Professional Women's Club honored Miss Jeannette Bonig at a tea Sunday at the Woman's Civic Club house. Miss Bonig was the club's nominee for the "Woman of the Year" award given by the Maryland Federation of BPW Clubs. Guests were received by the officers. The past presidents presided at the tea table. Left to right are Mrs. Eva Hogan, Miss Gerardine Pritchard, Miss Mary Jo Logsdon, president; Mrs. Ethel Northcraft and Miss Bonig.

Lutheran Women Meet

Mrs. F. Lee Fresh, The Dingle, was installed as secretary; and Mrs. Richard E. Doub, Williamsport, chairman of the Cumberland - Hagerstown District of the Maryland Lutheran Church Women. The ceremony was held in conjunction with the first district assembly here since the Lutheran church women were organized. It was in St. Paul's Church.

The meeting was held to explain the purpose and program of the Lutheran church women. Mrs. John F. Sammel, as temporary chairman, presided. Mrs. Harold Fearer, president of the women of the host church, extended the welcome. Mrs. Herbert Schlotterbeck, Hagerstown, served as temporary secretary.

Devotions were led by Mrs. Albert Newcomer, Trinity church, Boonsboro, Rev. George Whetstone, St. John's, Hagerstown, was the speaker at the morning session. Mrs. Albert Fischer, president of the state group, officiated at the installation.

The Musettes, under the direction of Miss Carole Reith, entertained during the luncheon.

Leadership training was held during the afternoon, with Mrs. Fischer, Mrs. Oren Strine, Mrs. Earl Howard, Mrs. Merle Shumaker and Mrs. Lancelot McCardell in charge. Rev. John F. Sammel of the host church conducted the closing service.

Alternating meetings, the next probably will be held in Hagerstown in the fall. Approximately 152 women registered, coming from 22 different churches.

Smorgasbord Is Tonight

The public is invited to attend the smorgasbord and entertainment being sponsored by the Sacred Heart Alumni Association tonight. Tickets will be available at the door.

It will be held at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club from 7 until 9 o'clock, with Dr. Leo H. Ley as master of ceremonies. Proceeds are for the alumni's pledge to the hospital building fund.

The Mickie Welsh Trio will play during the dinner, and will present song specialities during the evening until 9 o'clock. Entertainment will feature dancing by Miss Vickie Nixon, who will present her intrepretation of Percy Faith's Laura, "on pointe" and a modern presentation of jazz, patterned to "Drum Suite."

A special prize will be awarded following the entertainment.

4th District Club To Meet

The monthly meeting of the Fourth District United Democratic Women's Club will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Shaw's Restaurant, Oldtown Road.

John T. Mason will be guest speaker.

A buffet luncheon will be served.

Day Camp Counselors Announced At Luncheon

Mrs. Ronald Rosher, president of the Cumberland Country Club Day Comp Association, entertained her officers and board at a luncheon Friday at her home, Sunset Drive.

Announcement of counselors was made. They are Miss Dorothy Minke, a junior at Frostburg State College; Miss Debra Boden, a freshman at Madison College, Harrisonburg, Va., and Jack Kleiss, a senior at LaSalle High School and a member of the all-city football team.

Tentative plans were discussed for procuring club shirts for the children. Day camp will begin June 24 and continue through September 2 Monday through Friday from 10 a. m. until 4:30 p. m.

Plans were formulated to send out applications for day camp. They are to be mailed to club members the middle of the month. Mrs. Rosher requests anyone not receiving one to call any member of the committee.

The annual dance sponsored by the association will be held July 20 for club members and invited guests. Proceeds will be used for the association.

Guests at the luncheon were Mrs. Ralph Sell Jr., Mrs. Robert Roberts, Mrs. Charles L. Minke, Mrs. Carlton Brinsfield, Mrs. Woodrow Gurley, Mrs. Alan Shrager, Mrs. Edward J. Mattingly, Mrs. Oliver Nadeau and Mrs. John T. Mason.

El Fidel Auxiliary Plans Sale

The auxiliary formulated plans for a rummage sale while members of the El Fidel Club discussed the annual public spring dance at a point meeting Thursday at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club.

May 9 was selected as the date for the rummage sale, which will be held 100 North Centre Street, beginning at 9 a. m. Those wishing contributions to be picked up are to call Mrs. Goldie Hare, Oldtown Road; Mrs. Grace Burner, Baltimore Pike, or Mrs. Edwin VanMeter, Baltimore Pike.

Tentative plans also were discussed for the annual family picnic in the early summer and a corn roast in late summer. Mrs. Amanda Percy was welcomed as a new member. The next meeting will be May 23.

Joseph Moore was named general chairman for the spring dinner-dance, which will be May 18 at the Shrine Club. It will begin at 6:30. Dancing will be to music by the Aristocrats. Tickets may be purchased from any member or at the door.

Attending the meeting were Mrs. Hare, Mrs. Ann McCleary, Mrs. Burner, Mrs. Mary Summerlott, Mrs. Gladys Snyder, Mrs. Grace Moore and Mrs. VanMeter.

In medieval universities, the restrictions an behavior applied to the instructors, not the students. The professors were fined for being late to class, not attracting sufficient students and forbidden to leave the university grounds without permission.

Club Sends Donation To VA Center

Navy Mothers Club, 514, sent a contribution of $25 to Baker VA Center, Martinsburg, at the meeting Friday. It is for canteen books. Mrs. Helene Bujac conducted the meeting at the American Legion home.

Installation of officers and the Sears style show were discussed. The installation will be held at the May 9 meeting with Mrs. Bertha Pitts installing marshal. Mrs. Bujac, Mrs. Mary Edmiston, Mrs. Lucille Bartlett and Mrs. Blanch Lueck were named to represent the club at the style show and tour of Searstown.

A prize donated by Mrs. Sally Engle was won by Mrs. Louella Mace. A social hour followed the meeting and refreshments were served with Mrs. Anna Neus and Mrs. Lucille Stitcher hostesses. Fifteen members attended.

Attend Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. DeHaven, 1002 Michigan Avenue, were in Washington for the weekend to attend the wedding of the former's son, Donald E. DeHaven.

The wedding of Miss Patrice Podracky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Podracky, 8609 Littlefield, Detroit, to Mr. DeHaven was solemnized at 11:30 a. m. Saturday in the Church of St. Stephen the Martyr, Pennsylvania Avenue and 25th Street.

Also attending from here were Mrs. Effie DeHaven, grandmother of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. DeHaven, Gene DeHaven, Mrs. Phyllis Gulick, Joseph Gulick, Susan Gulick, DeHaven Road, Baltimore Pike; and Mrs. Paul Appel, 1103 Oldtown Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert DeHaven, Flint, Mich., brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom, flew in.

"Ageless" loveliness is the reward of the woman who follows these three important ways to beauty.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

A Formula For Agelessness

There are three major factors in keeping a woman's looks at peak level—a porportioned figure, lithe carriage and smooth, glowing skin. An nothing can ever completely disguise the lack of any one of them.

Statistics prove that a woman's figure is apt to take on weight after her thirtieth birthday. That should be sufficient warning to guard against excess poundage. A health as well as a beauty hazard.

But taking up with every food fad that comes along will not accomplish your goal. Though it may slim you down, the moment you go back to your regular diet, up you'll go. What's worse, your skin will suffer. Like a balloon, skin cannot stand up to the inflation-deflation sequence caused by constant, sudden or severe changes in weight. Wrinkles, sag and stretch ensue.

Be wise! Achieve your normal weight and then stabilize it by regulating your calorie intake to around 2,500 a day. Make a point of including all the foods that encourage radiant skin, sparkling hair, strong nails and abundant energy.

Only joints and muscles that are kept in "free-wheeling" condition can sustain the grace and carriage of youth.

The third factor, eternally lovely skin depends on the faithful practice of just a simple, effective routine. A night lubricant, a once-a-day laving of protective, treatment-type foundation is minimum care, but the kind to which most complexions will respond.

Simple and uncomplicated as these precautions sound, they will make it possible for you to travel through life as your most attractive self—endlessly and agelessly lovely!

What's the "Rule Of Ten"? It's John Robert Powers' formula for calculating your own ideal proportions, and it's fully detailed in the booklet, "Do You Measure Up?" — yours for 10c and a stamped, return envelope sent to John Robert Powers in care of this newspaper.

Granting Amnesty

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 17-year-old high school senior. I can't talk to anyone about this problem because I'd feel like a heel saying these things about a girl.

I've been dating Miss A for almost a year. At first she was a lot of fun but after a while she began to get moody and act weird. She cries over nothing and withdraws into silence for hours at a time.

Last week I told her I thought we'd better call it quits. She went into a crying jag and began to pull chunks of hair out of her head. She said if I ever quit her she would kill herself.

I'd hate to be responsible for anything like that and yet I don't want to go with her anymore. My folks have been opposed to Miss A from the first because she telephones me about three times every evening — sometimes after midnight.

I need advice.—WANT OUT

Dear Want Out: The girl is mentally ill and needs professional help. Ask your mother to speak to Miss A's mother about putting her in the hands of a doctor.

Don't allow yourself to be threatened into maintaining a relationship you don't want. You are not responsible for this girl. Be gentle and kind but unwind the relationship—and quickly.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an active mother 28 years of age. My two children are 2 and 8.

My husband travels five days out of the week and I was going nuts being alone so much. Then I discovered bowling.

Sitters are expensive so I have arranged to leave the key to my apartment with the woman next door. In case of an emergency she can always get in.

My husband told me he tried to phone me from Orlando last week and when nobody answered the phone he became frantic. My 8-year-old is a sound sleeper and he didn't hear the phone ring. When I told my husband where I was he got mad and said I can't leave the kids at night anymore.

I see nothing wrong so long as the neighbor lady is willing to help out. She insists it's no trouble. What do you say?—LEADER OF THE LEAGUE

Dear Leader: The neighbor woman wouldn't be of much help in case of a flash fire. Small children should not be left alone.

If you can't afford a sitter, ask the neighbor if you can put the kids to sleep on a cot in her apartment and collect them when you get home. If she is unwilling, stay home.

Dear Ann: My husband and I bought an enormous old house three years ago and converted it into a small hotel. We can accomodate 15 couples and we run about 80% capacity from September through April. Beginning in May we are jammed.

The problem is my husband's relatives. They pile in at the height of the season and call it a "family visit." They sponge two and three weeks vacations, complete with free room and board and maid service. They write in advance to "reserve" their favorite rooms and we are sick of it.

New Discovery Now Makes It Possible To Shrink And Heal Hemorrhoids Without Surgery

Stops Itch — Relieves Pain In Minutes

New York, N. Y. (Special): A world-famous institute has discovered a new substance which has the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids without surgery. The sufferer first notices almost unbelievable relief in minutes from itching, burning and pain. Then this substance speeds up healing of the injured tissues all while it quickly reduces painful swelling.

Tests conducted under a doctor's observations proved this so — even in cases of 10 to 20 years' standing. The secret is the new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — now offered in both ointment or suppository form called Preparation H®.

In addition to actually shrinking piles — Preparation H lubricates and makes bowel movements less painful. It helps to prevent infection (a principal cause of hemorrhoids).

Only Preparation H contains this magic new substance which quickly helps heal injured cells back to normal and stimulates regrowth of healthy tissue again. Just ask for Preparation H Ointment or Preparation H Suppositories (easier to use away from home). Available at all drug counters.

We designed two new cars—and built a lot of our record-setting Avanti into them: supercharged R2 engines... heavy duty springs and shock absorbers, plus anti-sway bars, front and rear ...trac rods, rear...racing type disc brakes, the safest known and ours alone.

We named them R2 Super Lark and R2 Super Hawk and had Andy Granatelli take them out to the infamous Bonneville Salt Flats for final performance and endurance tests.

We could scarcely believe the results, but the official U.S. Auto Club timers confirmed them: R2 Super Lark—132 mph! R2 Super Hawk—140 mph! Two-way averages—under the most punishing weather and surface conditions. That kind of performance, combined with their gentle 'round-town manners, told us these cars were ready. R2 Super Lark and R2 Super Hawk are now available on special order at your Studebaker dealer's.

Flash: front seat safety belts now come factory-installed on every car—another advance from Studebaker.

Fire Burns Home In Barrelville

A Barrelville residence was badly damaged by fire early yesterday with three volunteer fire companies responding to the alarm.

Fire Chief William Rowley of the Wellersburg (Pa.) Company said the call was to the residence of David Klink, a five-room frame structure.

Also responding were the Mt. Savage and Clarysville units, with the latter sending its tank truck and three men. The Wellersburg and Mt. Savage companies each sent two pieces of equipment and about a dozen men.

Chief Rowley said one room of the home was "burned out," another gutted and the others badly damaged by smoke. The owner said he believed the fire started from defective wiring. Damage was estimated at $1,500.

LaVale volunteer firemen brought a small forest fire under control Sunday night on a ridge in the Braddock Farms section where a similar fire had started last Sunday. Forestry Department workers were patroling the area Sunday to keep the blaze well under control.

City Ballfield Is Named

The city's new baseball field adjoining the Sewage Treatment Plant on Offutt Street, will be known as "Municipal Baseball Field."

The Mayor and Council yesterday approved an order so naming the field and also will see that an appropriate plaque is prepared.

The order, signed by Mayor Earl D. Chaney, said the name pays tribute to all citizens, officials, departments and city employes who have brought the ballfield into reality.

Prices Cut

NEW YORK (UPI)—Three producers have cut prices by 2½ cents a pound on plybutadiene synthetic rubber.

The cuts were made by Phillips Petroleum Co., Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. and Goodrich-Gulf Chemical Co. The new price is 25 cents.

Shires Reappointed To Education Board

Among the 19 persons appointed to 15 county boards of education in Maryland were one each to the Allegany and the Garrett county boards, Gov. J. Millard Tawes, announced yesterday.

T. Donald Shires, 506 Patterson Avenue, was named to a full five-year term to the Allegany County Board of Education.

He was appointed three years ago to the board to fill the unexpired term of William L. Wilson, local attorney who was named and still is serving on the Maryland State Board of Education.

Shires, a graduate of Temple University, is assistant managing editor of the Cumberland Evening Times.

In Garrett County, George Edwards of Grantsville was reappointed for a six-year term. Full terms in that county are one year more than in Allegany's.

Edwards, a Grantsville garage owner, served for the past six years.

Speaking of the 19 board members named, Gov. Tawes said today: "Every appointee has been highly recommended by members of his community and I am confident that each will work to expand and improve the already fine education system now operating in Maryland."

The Governor said the commissions were sent to the clerks of the various circuit courts for delivery to the new appointees today. The terms begin the first Monday in May.

A member of the Allegany County Board of Education receives no salary, but the position provides for $200 annual travel expenses within the county.

Forty-two of the 55 highest peaks in the United States are found in the state of Colorado.

You mean to tell me that Gas will cool as well as heat my house?

Yes, indeed! You can get a single, all-year Gas Air Conditioning unit that heats, cools, dehumidifies, circulates, ventilates and cleans the air in your whole home—silently, automatically, thriftily. All you do is set the dial for the temperature you want, summer or winter.

Or, if you already have a forced-air Gas heating system in your home, you can convert it for summer air conditioning. Just add on a Gas central cooling unit; you can probably use the warm air ducts already in place. And remember, because a thrifty Gas flame does both the heating and cooling jobs, your operating costs stay low. Call your Gas Company soon for full information and for a free estimate on air conditioning your whole home with gas.

The Problem Of Federated Churches

A number of Protestant denominations will meet in Sturbridge, Mass., today to examine the problems facing federated churches in Massachusetts and to decide where to go from there. A federated church has been defined as one in which two or more local congregations of different denominations unite to share a common service and property but retain denominational ties. Such unions are becoming increasingly common, especially in the rural areas where declining population means many congregations can no longer afford to pay a minister or meet the expenses of a parish.

In a report prepared for the Sturbridge conference, Dr. Eugene G. Carper of the Massachusetts Council of Churches quotes one pastor on the value of the federated church: "It was a union of necessity, which has become a union of love." Dr. Carper says proponents of the federated church consider it an example of "grassroots ecumenicity waiting for the denominations to catch up." He recommended that denominations discourage competition in communities with too many churches. This is asking a good deal more than some denominations are willing to give.

Recent statistical studies by the National Council of Churches show that, for the first time in a century, church membership in 1962 declined in the sense that it did not exceed, but dropped below, the increase in population. Rev. Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr recently commented that "while the decline is not staggering, it reveals a break in the formerly ascending curve, which brought religious affiliation up from only 16 per cent of the population in 1850 to 49 per cent in 1940, with the recent remarkable postwar increase bringing it above 63 per cent," or 116 million church members. Even a slight slowing down of growth rates could sound the death knell for some smaller congregations.

These Days

Triumph Of A Wilful Man

Ludwig Erhard, the silvery-haired, fresh-cheeked 66-year-old Economics Minister of West Germany who is generally credited with being the creator of his country's "economic miracle," has finally been nominated to succeed old Konrad Adenauer as the German Chancellor. Since Erhard believes in a free economic system — no cartels, no price controls, no strangling taxes on business, no progressive inflation — this is precisely analogous to the situation that would prevail if a Barry Goldwater were to become President of the United States.

You may say that nothing like this could ever happen in an America that is so wrapped up in Welfare Statism that it gives only lip service to the idea of a free economy. Nevertheless, it was an organization sparked in America that gave Dr. Erhard his big push toward the top in Germany. If it can't happen here, we helped it happen there.

To understand the movement that gave Dr. Erhard his chance of reforming the German economic system along free lines you have to go back to World War II. An Austrian economist who believed in the free economic society, Friedrich Hayek, had been exiled from his homeland by the Nazis. He had found a temporary haven in London, where he wrote a book called "The Road to Serfdom." This able attack on the regnant philosophies of Keynesian inflationism and semi-socialist Welfare Statism brought Hayek a post in the United States at the University of Chicago. And the book's success in going against the trend of the times stirred the author to thinking that maybe an international organization of free economists, liberal in the old nineteenth century sense, might have some worldwide influence.

Thus the Mt. Pelerin Society of economists was started. It originally had thirty-eight members, among whom were the American economist, Henry Hazlitt, and the American publicist, Leonard Read. Another great exile to the United States from his native Austria, economist Ludwig von Mises, was among the band recruited by Hayek for the organization. The exiles and the Americans joined with like-minded colleagues from continental Europe in a first conference at the Lake Geneva resort of Mt. Pelerin, which is what gave the little society its name.

All of this took place in 1947, when Europe was still struggling to emerge from the ruination of the war. Almost everybody expected to see some form of socialism triumph everywhere on the old continent. But the Mt. Pelerinites were resolved that this should not be permitted to happen. One of their ablest recruits was a man named Wilhelm Roepke, who now teaches at the Graduate Institute of International Studies in Geneva.

Roepke, a believer in something called "the social market economy," which might be described as "free enterprise with a heart," had a fervent disciple. The disciple's name was Ludwig Erhard. Erhard became a Mt. Pelerinite, drinking deep of the free philosophy.

Since Keynesian New and Fair Dealers were riding high in 1947 in all positions of influence in both the United States and Europe, it is a minor miracle that the United States Military Government permitted Dr. Erhard to become Konrad Adenhauer's Minister of Economics. Possibly it was because he was one of the few anti-Nazi economists who could still be found in Germany at that time. He had already served as Minister of the Economy in Bavaria, where he had been tracetable. However, he was to prove anything but tracetable as boss of the new West German economic system.

What Dr. Erhard proceeded to do was to revamp the West German economy along Mt. Pelerin lines. He refused to let the pre-war cartels re-establish themselves along the Rhine. On a Sunday in June of 1948, when the American Occupation offices were closed for the weekend, he issued an order abolishing all price controls, to take effect on Monday morning. General Lucius Clay, the U. S. Military Governor in West Germany, called the suddenly refractory Erhard on the carpet to tell him that all of the American advisers to the Occupation considered the abrogation of price controls to be a terrible mistake. But Dr. Erhard refused to budge. "Turn the people and the money loose," he said, "and they will make the country strong."

This is precisely what happened. In American and British academic circles, the brand of economics espoused by the Mt. Pelerin Society is still regarded as something that went out with crinoline dresses and the horse cars. But it is one of the early Mt. Pelerinites who is slated to become the next Chancellor of West Germany.

Espionage Case Involves Top Soviet Leaders

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

An espionage case, which can easily have more explosive effects than our case of Alger Hiss, is another major element of uncertainty in the Soviet political picture.

Very little attention has been paid to date to this remarkable case, which was remanded for trial a few days ago to a special military collegium. It remains to be seen whether the trial will be public or semi-public or private. As of now, the best guess appears to be that the prosecutor's opening and closing speeches and the sentence will be public, with the rest of the proceedings in camera.

In any case, the affair reaches into the very ruts of the Soviet military and political hierarchy. On the Russian side, the chief person accused is Gen. Oleg Penkovsky, a military scientist who long held the position of Secretary of the Scientific Advisory Committee of the Council of Ministers. In American terms, the arrest of Penkowsky on charges of espionage is closely comparable to the arrest on similar charges of the principal administrative assistant to the President's chief scientific advisor. The effect of such an affair in this country may too easily be imagined.

In the Soviet Union, the repercussions of the Penkovsky case must be vastly more far-reaching, not only because of the closed character of Soviet society, but also because Penkovsky, as an individual, had very high connections.

To be charged along with Penkovsky is a British businessman, Greville Wynne, who was in effect kidnapped in Hungary by the Soviet police some time ago. Wynne is expected to be accused of working for the Central Intelligence Agency as well as the British Secret Service.

One of Penkovsky's high connections was apparently the famous secret police apparatus, Gen. Ivan Serov. Gen Serov has reportedly been arrested and sent to prison, which suggests that charges may also be brought against him.

When dismissed as chairman of the MKGB some years ago, Serov moved over to the Soviet Defense Ministry, to become its intelligence boss. Hence, the arrest of Serov is the precise equavalent of the arrest of the director of the Pentagon's Defense intelligence agency, the highest personage in the American intelligence community except CIA Director John A. McCone.

Furthermore, the man who apparently sponsored Serov as intelligence chief of the Defense Ministry is none other than the powerful Soviet Minister of Deformer head of the whole Soviet sponsor, moreover, Malinovsky is highly likely to be held responsible for any indiscretion committed by one of the key figures on his staff. This may explain the symptoms of acute disquiet about his own future which Marshal Malinovsky is known to have displayed while visiting Indonesia.

In addition, there are less well-confirmed reports that the Penkovsky case involves, by our familiar process of guilt-by-association, other Soviet personalities even more eminent than Malinovsky. For example, there are faily pervasive rumors that one of the daughters of Frol Kozlov accepted presents from Penkovsky when he returned from trips into Eastern Europe with luxuries hard to obtain in Moscow. Kozlov, it will be remembered, is currentfense, Marshal Rodion Malinovsky. Even if not Serov's personal ly being tipped as Nikita S. Khrushchev's successor in the Soviet Premiership.

As can be seen, therefore, the Penkovsky case can well be used as a powerful engine of political destruction. Whether it is used in this manner, which Soviet leaders, if any, will be destroyed or disgraced, and how far the affair will go, will depend almost entirely on the management of the prosecution.

Who controls the prosecution? What orders will the prosecutors have? These are the key questions. The answers to these questions just may be that this case is Khrushchev's reserve weapon against his political adversaries. It can hardly be a coincidence that the two most important persons mentioned as being touched by the case, Kozlov and Malinovsky, are also the most probable leaders of the recent opposition to Khrushchev and his policies.

Kozlov has been conspicuous by his absence from all official occasions for a matter of a fortnight—long enough to cause vivid speculation, since his non-appearance is wholly unexplained. Malinovsky, too, can hardly enjoy the tentative but intensely curious reemergence of the disgraced Marshal Georgi Zhukov, for the Defense Minister and Marshal Konev were Zhukov's bitterest denouncers when he fell.

All this, it must be added, may mean everything or nothing at all. Even the Penkovsky case may be quietly disposed of, without having secondary political effects. A strange churning is clearly going on in Moscow. Very strange things are happening, or may be about to happen. But only time can tell who will be on top and who will have gone down —if anyone goes down—when the churning ceases and the situation settles down again.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

JUDGES' PAY OFFICE—A big Internal Revenue Service headache involves employers who withhold federal taxes from the salaries of their workers and then fail to pass the money on to the government. IRS has found it necessary to bring some of them into court to pay up, in fact has sought tough punishment to set an example for businessmen.

It came as something of a shock the other day, therefore, when Congress was asked to provide $88,481 to the office that pays the salaries of federal judges so it in turn could pass the money on to IRS, which it was supposed to have withheld from judges' salaries.

Somewhat sheepishly, it was explained that when Congress got into a hassle over appropriations bills last year, the judges' pay office ran out of money. In order to continue the judges' salary payments, it was decided to use the money that had been withheld for income taxes.

Rep. John J. Rooney, D-N. Y., asked whether the office had cleared the arrangement with the IRS, and whether the office itself wasn't liable to a law suit by IRS to force payment.

Rooney went on to speculate that such a suit would have a tough time in any federal court inasmuch as one of the beneficiaries of the violation would be the judge sitting in the case. Besides, it turned out, IRS had given the judges' pay office sanction to "borrow" the tax money to keep the judges' salaries flowing.

Specialist Has Theory Noise Causes Deafness

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

Do everyday noises lead ultimately to the loss of hearing that occurs so often in older people? Hearing loss in the aging is known as presbycusis (presbi-ku-sis). Dr. Samuel Rosen of New York considered this possibility of noises as the source after examining the hearing of Nilotic tribes in Africa. He was struck by the fact that the elderly in these tribes seldom were bothered along this line at least, much less than those of the same age in the United States.

Rosen's theory gained support from the fact that there is more presbycusis in American men than in women, presumably because males are exposed to more noise. The Nilotics live in areas lower than they are in this country where the sound levels are much lower than they are in this country.

Dr. A. J. Philipszoon of Amsterdam had an opportunity to test this theory. He was consulted by an 82-year-old man who complained of poor hearing. It had reached the stage where a hearaid was needed because the man was almost deaf. According to a report on this case in the Journal of Laryngology and Otology, the eardrum on the right was normal but that on the left could not be examined because the canal was filled with wax.

When Dr. Philipszoon attempted to remove the "wax" it proved to be a piece of dirty cotton wool that had obstructed the ear completely. The plug had been in so long it had to be removed fiber by fiber. When asked about it, the patient became angry and told of having had ear trouble 32 years previously and the family doctor must have left the cotton in the ear.

The Dutch ear specialist then conducted hearing tests and was surprised to find a marked difference in hearing between the two sides. There was normal loss of hearing for age in the right ear but this type of deafness was less pronounced in the left although he had a mixed type of hearing loss. The changes were not caused by time, suggesting that the plug of cotton served as an ear defender.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

G. K. Chesterton once remarked, "The thing I hate most about an argument is that it always interrupts a discussion." Chesterton is also credited with the story of the wily bandit who finally was caught by the king's troopers. The king, an addict of games and riddles, told the bandit, "You may make a statement. If you tell the truth in it, you will be shot. If you lie, you will be hanged."

The bandit, without hesitation, put everything in a fine dither by declaring, "Sire, I am going to be hung."

Wes Lawrence, well-loved Cleveland scribe, received this little confession from one of his readers: "Perhaps I'm just a perverse creature, but wherever I read a story about the U.N., and see the name U. Thant, it brings out the I Thall in me!"

An American tourist gazed in awe at India's famous Taj Mahal. "And to think," he told his wife, "they were able to do it before anybody even had heard of such a thing as foreign aid!"

William Moore Had Premonition Of Death Before His Last Hike

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — William L. Moore, the Baltimore mailman found dead along an Alabama highway on an integration march to Mississippi, had written a letter to President Kennedy before he left, which he tried to deliver by hand but a White House guard told him to drop in the mail.

Moore also wrote a letter to me. In it he said:

"Last Friday I walked to the White House gates from Baltimore wearing by desegregation signs, and was told to drop my letter in the mailbox. Along with millions of newspaper readers, I laughed heartily at the joke on me. But I intend to approach the White House guard with another letter and it will be no joke—not for me, at least.

"In this letter I will say that I am on my way to Mississippi by foot wearing my desegregation signs. If I can raise $200 or $300, I will start walking from there; if not, I will take the bus to Chattanooga and start.

"I don't like the latter alternative. It will mean beginning in the heart of the south with no indication in advance of what may happen. One man, Jimmy Travis, a voter registration worker, has already been critically wounded along the highway by someone driving by. I've lived without fear for years in Mississippi, and I have walked halfway across Maryland twice without incident. But one doesn't get 6 months in Maryland for 'obstructing the sidewalk,' as happens to students in Jackson. I have a family and creditors who cannot afford any lengthy termination of my pay check.

Premonition Of Death

"I have no idea what, if anything, the press plans to do about my walk. I would feel better if I knew that if I was shot or beaten or arrested, somebody would be informed of what it was all about. I will be engaged in interstate travel and entitled to equal protection under the 14th Amendment.

"I hope that I can walk to Mississippi without having to ask the Kennedys to help clear a path, but I hope they will be there if I do need help. If a man cannot walk down the street or highway dressed in a sign, otherwise minding his own business, then are we not being deprived of our freedom to speak out against injustice openly? Some cry that we should commit aggression abroad to advance freedom. Must we not first guarantee it for all corners of our own land?

"Next week I am free evenings, except Monday and Wednesday; the following week I'm off mornings, but have to be back to work at noon. Would you like me to visit you?"

I did not see mailman Moore before he left on his walk to Mississippi. I don't known that it would have made any difference if I had. I could have told him about my own experiences in facing the Ku Klux Klan in Georgia in 1946 and warned him to stay away, but he would have gone to Mississippi anyway.

Mailman Moore, an ex-Marine, was as meticulous as he was courageous. He enclosed a stamped and addressed envelope for my reply. I still have it on my desk, the picture of George Washington on the five-cent stamp looking up at me reproachfully.

Blood And Liberty

Not having answered Moore's letter while he was alive, perhaps I can give my nickel's worth of thoughts now that he is dead.

George Washington's picture on that five-cent stamp reminds me of what a great contemporary of Washington said. "The tree of liberty," said Thomas Jefferson, "must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots and tyrants. . . "

That seems a cruel observation in these modern times. But Jefferson, a realist, made it a long time ago after this country had engaged in a death struggle for liberty. His observation proved even more accurate over the same cause for which William Moore gave his life.

Moore, who obviously knew he risked never coming back from Mississippi, said in his letter to me: "I would feel better if I knew that if I was shot or beaten or arrested, somebody would be informed of what it was all about."

What it was all about was exactly the same principle Abraham Lincoln described 100 years ago when he said: "A house divided against itself cannot stand." In some parts of the country today this great declaration has been forgotten.

The danger is that those who have forgotten it may engender as great bitterness as they themselves experienced after the Civil War of 100 years ago.

Shortly before that war, there occurred the potato famine in Ireland when 2,000 Irishmen died of starvation and perhaps another 2,000,000 migrated, chiefly to the United States, where their descendants have become mayors and governors and presidents, and where for years they fanned the flames of hatred against England.

Those deaths, and the Black and Tan street fighting in Ireland that followed, embittered for a century relations between two countries which should have been friends.

And the danger in the South is that the current bloodshed may be held against the Bull Connors who broke up prayer meetings in Birmingham and against the white snipers who shoot down the William Moores from cowardly ambush along the highway. This may embitter race relations in the South for years to come.

Having A Go

By John Crosby

LONDON

Gambling is legal in England. London is studded with little bookie shops where the charwomen place their small bets and the newspaper delivery trucks have big signs: "Don't lay your bets until you read the Evening News." Every night, the big table at London's centuries-old gaming club of Crockford's is jammed with players, playing the limit, 200 pounds ($560) on every card from 10 p. m. when the game starts until 9 or 10 a. m. when it breaks up.

It was in Crockford's the other night during one of their galas, a once-a-month soiree whose profits go to charity. Evening dress is required that night and it's a little more crowded than usual. It's a marvelous old house overlooking Admiralty Arch on the Carleton House terrace and the scene inside somehow reminded me of the sort of illustrations Charles Dana Gibson painted around 1905. The high-ceilinged room. The women in low-cut dresses. The dinner jackets. The liveried servants passing drinks. The slightly faded splendor.

But it went deeper than outer appearance. There's an air of geniality about English gambling that is peculiarly its own. The nine players at the big table, all regulars, make jokes, taunt each other, frequently bellow with laughter to the point where a croupier has to sssh them. I don't suppose the English relish losing any more than anyone else, but the code demands that they appear not to mind. There's less tension and little of that tight-lipped sweaty concentration you find at Monte Carlo or Cannes.

Still, many of them are the same players, Bill Meaden, one of the directors at Crockford's, told me there are only 2,000 chemin de fer players in the world and all the casinos must share them. If they're in Crockford's, then obviously they can't be in Le Touquet or Biarritz or Monte Carlo. The passing of the Gaming Act of 1961, which made operation of a gambling casino legal in England, has done great damage to the continental casinos by draining off large numbers of the small supply of regular chemmy players.

Crockford's now claims to be the biggest chemin de fer parlor in the world. An estimated 25 million pounds ($70 million) a year is bet at its five tables. It's hard to know precisely because Crockford's, unlike the continental casinos, doesn't take a percentage. The law won't permit it. Crockford's charges only a seat charge, 10 pounds for a seat for each shoe which lasts roughly half an hour. The big table takes in 180 pounds an hour ($540) and as much as $6,500 a night, which isn't bad. The smaller tables charge only two and three pounds per half hour.

I have seen much bigger betting at Monte Carlo or Cannes than at Crockford's. "We don't have big winners or big losers," a Crockford's man told me. "But we have steadier players. Play goes on here 365 days a year. At Monte Carlo it's seasonal, most of it concentrated in one month." Then he added a line which I found pretty funny. "A player can lose 20,000 pounds in three weeks at Monte Carlo. Here that money has to last him all year—so he's more careful."

Gambling has gotten more conspicuous in London since the passage of the Gaming Act, but it's doubtful that there's more of it. It's just done more openly. As a club, which it still is, Crockford's has been in operation for years, its rooms housing poker and bridge games. Since the introduction of chemin de fer tables, though, its profits have skyrocketed. Shares in the club which were worth 10 shillings ($1.40) in 1961 are now worth 40 pounds ($112). Last year it distributed 700,000 pounds ($1,960,000) to its shareholders. It's the best place in London to get a fine meal for very little since the tables subsidize the food. Crockford's loses 10 shillings on every meal.

The most beautiful gaming club in London is not Crockford's. It's John Aspirall's club at 44 Berkeley Square, situated in a lovely house George III built for his mistress. Aspirall's is a high-stakes chemin de fer casino, aiming at the top two or three hundred players in London and the rumor is that it is not doing well. The night I was there there were only seven players at one table, and some of those were playing for the house (a practice which is forbidden at Crockford's and frowned on at most gaming establishments.)

With its magnificent Georgian staircase and casual elegance, it's certainly the most beautiful gambling joint I've ever set foot in.

Letter To The Editor

Sir:

I would like to thank you for a challenging, literate editorial—the one appearing today (April 25), denouncing instruction-by-rote and what I would call an anti-intellectual education. A newspaper piece like this deserves cheers from the intelligent, and I hope you will believe that you have their thanks.

JAW ABSCESS

Mrs. J. M. writes: My husband had fever and loss of weight for some time before a diagnosis of actinomycosis was made. Is drainage from the abscess in his jaw contagious to others in the household?

REPLY

No, but seasonable care is needed in changing and disposing of the dressings from the draining wounds. The causative fungi are frequently found in the mouth of normal persons. The condition is treated with antibiotics.

ON-THE JOB BURPING

L. V. writes: I have been belching for 10 years. I haven't been able to work for 2 years because as soon as I take a job I start belching and get a pain in the chest. What can be done about this?

REPLY

If work makes you belch, a psychiatrist should be consulted.

POOR LEG CIRCULATION

R. H. J. writes: Do you have any literature on hardening of the arteries of the lower limbs, which causes pain on walking?

REPLY

Yes. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on poor arterial circulation, which discusses various measures for relief.

EATING AND ANXIETY

G. L. F. writes: Are anxiety reactions sometimes accompanied by loss of appetite?

REPLY

Yes, but some persons develop the opposite reaction and eat more during these unsettled periods.

KIDNEY GROWTHS

M. W. writes: Is it possible to tell before operation whether a kidney tumor is malignant?

REPLY

Some kidney tumors always are malignant and the diagnosis can be made before surgery. Others require biopsy.

ACID STIMULATORS

Mrs. J. J. writes: Are there any foods which would increase the amount of hydrochloric acid in the stomach?

REPLY

Meat, fish, poultry, meat extractives such as broth, and concentrated acid fruits. Coffee, tea, and alcohol also stimulate acid formation.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Salvation Army Board Learns About Graduate

The Salvation Army Advisory Board was informed at its luncheon meeting yesterday at the Citadel on North Mechanic Street that one local SA representative will graduate from the School of Officer Training at Atlanta, Ga., May 25 and two others will enter the school in September.

Miss Patricia Shadwell is completing her two-year course at Atlanta and is expecting assignment immediately after graduation.

George Price Jr. and his wife, Mrs. Patricia Price, who have been assisting the SA program at Wheeling, W. Va., the past several months, will enroll in the School of Officer Training in September.

Russell G. Robeson, chairman of the board, announced that Woodward D. Pealer will serve as chairman of the finance committee. This committee soon will begin meeting to prepare a budget for the County United Fund. Other members of the finance committee are Denton Fuller, William Oburn, Lewis J. Ort, James L. Weber and Robert Hunter Jr.

Plans also are being pushed for local observance of National Salvation Army Week starting May 19.

Lions Hear Good News

Liquor License Rush Expected At Court House

A last-minute rush for new Allegany County alcoholic beverage licenses is expected today at the Court House.

Only about 190 of the 280 licenses had been issued when the Court House closed at 4 p. m. yesterday. Unless 90 tavern owners hurry to the Court House today there will be some places with dissatisfied customers when the new license year arrives Wednesday.

The office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Circuit Court, also is busy in selling various business licenses, including those for pinball machines and music boxes. These licenses are not required until the end of May because a grace period has been granted. Business owners could save themselves some effort if they mailed checks to the clerk's office rather than come in person.

Returns Ahead Of Last Year

With some 20 county and 12 city team captains still to report indications are that the house to house Cancer Crusade total collections are well ahead of last year, according to Robert G. Garner, Allegany County chairman.

Last year a total of $6,957.28 was collected in the house-to-house appeal. This year with 32 captains yet to be reported, a total of $4,610.56 has been tabulated.

Mr. Garner urged that persons who were not contacted by the volunteer workers to send in a contribution to Cancer Crusade. In cases where no one was at home an envelope was left at the residence for this purpose, addressed to Cancer, 128 Union Street, Cumberland.

Team captains are urged to make their reports to the chapter office as soon as possible.

City Bus Service Is Planned For Shopping Center

The Queen City Bus Lines will provide bus service to Searstown beginning Wednesday, according to Lawrence L. Grim, president.

An extra bus, he said, will leave Baltimore Street on the following schedule: 8:20, 9:30, 10:30 and 11:20 a. m. and at 1:30, 2:30, 3:30, 4:30 and 5:30 p. m.

The bus will leave the shopping center for Baltimore Street at 9, 10 and 10:55 a. m., at noon and at 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6:10 p. m.

Mr. Grim said the bus will follow the same route as the Cresaptown bus to that community and then on to the shopping center by way of Winchester Road. It will provide half-hour service to people along the Cresaptown route during most daylight hours.

The service is being offered on a 30-day trial basis and will be made permanent if traffic warrants, Mr. Grim said.

Safety Circus Continues Today

Inspector Richard Mansfield will present his "Safety Circus" in three more Cumberland schools today as his two-day visit sponsored by the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission comes to an end.

He will be at Virginia Avenue School at 9:15 a. m., at Gephart School at 10:45 a. m. and at Johnson Heights School at 1:15 p. m.

Yesterday, Inspector Mansfield visited Columbia Street, Centre Street and St. Patrick's schools.

Public Hearing Is Planned In Mine Explosion

DOLA, W. Va. (UPI) —State Mines Director Leonard Timms said Monday a public hearing has tentatively been set for May 7 in the investigation of an explosion at the Compass No. 2 mine here which killed 22 workers last Thursday.

Timms said the hearing would be held at the Harrison County court house in nearby Clarksburg and that other meetings would hinge upon the outcome of the first session.

He and officials of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, the United Mine Workers union and Clinchfield Coal Co., spent most of the day in the mine Monday. Timms had nothing to say about the activity Monday but added the officials were not through with their preliminary investigation and are expected to descend the 330-foot mine shaft again Tuesday.

Officials noted families of the 22 blast victims each will receive about $1,000 in survivor benefits from the UMW Welfare Fund. All of the victims were married and had a total of 39 children.

Scene Of Railroad Derailment

Some 21 cars of a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train derailed near Perryville in northern Maryland yesterday. No one was injured but mildly toxic gas escaped from several tank cars, forcing evacuation of about 20 residents of nearby homes and cancellation of classes at Charleston Elementary School. Wrecker crews hoped to have the jumbled cars off the tracks late yesterday. (AP Photofax)

Six Are Hurt In Accidents

KEYSER — Six persons were hospitalized in two separate highway accidents in the Keyser area over the weekend.

The one mishap hospitalized Albion G. Mackley, of 83 Third Street, Keyser; his wife, Nellie Mackley; Havilah Mackley, of 204 Mozelle Street, Keyser, and Isabelle House, also of Keyser. All were reported in "satisfactory" condition at Potomac Valley Hospital yesterday.

In another crash, Lora Marie Hott, 21, and Sandra K. Null, 21, both of Keyser, were admitted to Potomac Valley Hospital. Both complained of chest and head injuries and were reported as "satisfactory".

West Virginia State Police said the four persons were injured in a two-car crash on U. S. Route 220, about one mile south of Keyser.

In the second mishap, the young ladies were injured when a car driven by Olan Franklin Fertig, 21, Keyser, went out of control and crashed on State Route 40, one mile east of Keyser.

Police said the car was coming down a mountain when it went out of control and rolled over.

Frostburg Woman Hurt In Accident

FROSTBURG— A local woman was hospitalized early Sunday when the car she was driving went out of control and overturned on U. S. Route 40 five miles west of Frostburg.

Admitted to Miners Hospital, Frostburg, was Gertrude Ann Engle, 35, of 4 Stoyer Street. Attaches said she suffered possible broken vertebraes, and lacerations of the ankle and hand. She suffered the injuries when she was thrown from the car as it overturned.

State Police said Miss Engle was driving east when the car went out of control, ran off the road and overturned. Fatigue was listed as the probable cause of the mishap.

Music Club Eligible For Honor Roll

PIEDMONT — Key Note Music Club of the Elliott Studio, affiliated with the National Federation of Music Clubs, has earned the highest number of achievement points for junior clubs in Maryland. This makes the group eligible for the national honor roll.

Members of the club made plans for the music recital to be held May 6, at their meeting held recently in the Piedmont Library.

Girl, 5, Dies In Explosion

WEIRTON, W. Va. (UPI) — A five-year-old girl was killed and her expectant mother and two sisters were injured critically Monday when an explosion and fire destroyed their home in the King's Creek section of Weirton.

The victim was Peggy Ann Conley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Conley.

Mrs. Marjorie Long Conley, 25, and two other daughters, Suzie Long, 5, and Kelly Ann Long, 3, were taken to a hospital in critical condition. Conley was at work and another daughter, Debbie Long, 7, was at school at the time of the accident.

Mrs. Gloria Sasyn, who lives two doors away, said she happened to be looking at the Conley residence when the explosion occurred. "It went up in one big puff," she recalled.

Mrs. Sasyn said some of the occupants were blown from the building and that she rushed to one of the girls, about 100 yards from the house, and smothered her burning clothing with a blanket.

Windows were blown out of about two dozen homes in the area.

Officials said a bulldozer working on a street improvement project in the area punctured an underground gas line and that the gas apparently seeped into the basement of the home and was ignited.

The bidding:

Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♡ South brought in a contraband game contract in today's hand when his opponent failed to dispose of a card he could ill-afford to hold.

West's opening heart bid, North's one spade overcall and East's competitive raise were all of a somewhat synthetic nature. South's jump to three no trump, however, was based on robust values and asked little more from partner than a reasonably good spade suit and a card or two on the side. North was a bit apprehensive at the startling turn of developments, but he decided to let sleeping dogs lie until such time as he was doubled.

West opened the jack of hearts and declarer falsecarded by winning the trick with the king instead of the queen. The anemic dummy was a disappointment and South saw that, even if he located the queen of spades, he would have just eight tricks. The only chance for a ninth seemed to rest in obtaining another heart lead from West for, if East ever got in, a play thru South's queen of hearts would apply the finishing touch to his hopes.

Because of the sparsity of communication between the two hands, South was more or less obliged to take the spade finesse thru West. Declarer cashed the ace of spades first and then led the nine. When the queen came up, the first hurdle was successfully mounted. South ran the dummy's spades throwing a diamond and a club from his hand. West had to make three discards and he elected to part with one heart and two clubs.

A club was led to the closed hand, felling the jack and queen, respectively, and now declarer played a small diamond. West followed with the nine and the ace was played from the dummy. A diamond return put West in and, inasmuch as he had nothing left but hearts, he was obliged to lead that suit and establish South's queen for the game fulfilling trick.

West should have seen the endplay coming, and when the diamond is led he must put up his king so as to retain the nine for an exit card. If it should prove that South has the queen of diamonds, West's play will establish that card as the ninth trick, but in that event West cannot escape the endplay no matter what he does. His only hope, then, is to find his partner with the diamond queen and a high club honor, in which case East must get in eventually to effect the necessary heart return.

Frostburg Lions Hold Election

Other officers include: Lloyd Marshall, first vice president; Berl Plummer, second vice president; Leslie Fair, third vice president; George Tennant, secretary; George Griffith, treasurer; Robert Crabtree, tail twister; Raymond McFarland, lion tamer and Charles Lewis, Alex Densmore and John Conrad, directors.

R. Bowen Hardesty, president of Frostburg State Teachers College, spoke to the club and reviewed the actions of the Maryland General Assembly which effect the future of the local college. He discussed the transition of Frostburg from a teachers college to a state college.

John Ritchie, chairman of the broom sale, announced that all of the 70 dozen brooms had been sold. He thanked the community for its response and apologized for being unable to fill all requests for brooms this year.

The chairman of the Lions Club Park Committee, George Tennant, announced that a work meeting of the club will be held Wednesday to complete the erection of a backstop and to get the baseball diamond in condition for Little League plan. Refreshments will be served after the meeting.

Lions James Smith and Thomas Hutcheson were selected as official delegates to the District 22 Convention in Atlantic City from May 29 through June 1.

Frostburg To Get New Business Place

City Approves Adoption On Thoroughfare Plan

The Mayor and Council approved a resolution yesterday calling for adoption of the Thoroughfare Plan for Cumberland.

It was recommended by the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission to facilitate the overall program of the Urban Renewal Agency.

Public reaction at an April 16 hearing was favorable and James Alfred Avirett, commission chairman, said as a result it was determined preliminary engineering studies should be undertaken on the proposed connection between the Industrial Boulevard and the Cumberland Thruway southward across the B&O tracks to Offutt Street. That item was added to the list of priorities.

The adoption will allow Blair and Stein Associates, city planners, to proceed with subdivision regulations.

The plan is a system of major street improvements which is designed to give local traffic greater freedom of access to various parts of the city, meeting city needs through 1980.

Council also approved an ordinance for the sewering of McKinley Avenue from its intersection with Thompson Avenue to Ridge Terrace from McKinley to Ritchie Street together with 150 feet south on Ritchie, a total distance of 1,065 feet.

This project is eligible for federal funds under the Accelerated Public Works Program and only that cost actually incurred by the city will be charged against property owners.

Lions To Hold Broom Sale

The LaVale Lions Club will conduct a broom sale today with the project expanded to include the communities of Cresaptown and Mt. Savage as well as the LaVale region. Whisk brooms and mops also will be sold.

Harold S. Everline, chairman, said workers are to assemble at the LaVale Fire Hall at 5:30 p. m. when the group will be divided into teams and sectors assigned.

Eight teams will conduct the sale in LaVale, and one each for Cresaptown and Mt. Savage. Proceeds from the project will go toward the civic improvement and eye conservation programs of the club, Everline said.

Assisting Everline in arrangements are Millard T. Reckley and Leo P. Ford. Harry E. White, president of the Lions Club, said residents of the three communities can assist the workers by turning porch lights on as an indication they are interested in making purchases.

Fort Hill's Newspaper Wins Award

Fort Hill High School's newspaper, "The Sentinel" has received first place honors in the newspaper competition sponsored by the Southern Interscholastic Press Association.

The announcement was made during the annual convention held last weekend on the campus of Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia.

The newspapers, representing all of the southern states and Washington, D. C., were judged in various categories according to type of newspaper and enrollment. The Fort Hill publication was judged with other printed newspapers from high schools with an enrollment of 1,301 or more.

The newspapers were judged on typographical appearance and makeup, writing and coverage, management and production and general excellence.

Three Sentinel staff members attended the convention Saturday. They are Judy Garland, Sherri Boore, and Marlene Fisher.

This marked the third major award received by the staff of the Fort Hill publication this year. The Columbia Scholastic Press Association judged it first (top medalist winner) junior-senior high school newspaper in the country and the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge awarded it a George Washington Honor Medal for the work of its editorial staff.

Miss Mary M. Calemine is journalism instructor and newspaper advisor.

Soccer Riots Flare

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) —Police reported one man dead Monday, an 18-year-old boy near death and at least 119 other persons injured after wild and bloody soccer riots at Naples and Salerno.

Damage was in the thousands of dollars. Forty-four persons were under arrest at Naples, including 12 minors, and police were rounding up more persons for questioning.

The rioting broke out in both cities Sunday after referees had called penalties against the home teams.

LaSalle High Paper Wins Press Award

LaSalle High School's newspaper, "The Torch," was chosen as the high school newspaper with the best art and photography in the state Saturday by the Maryland Scholastic Press Advisers Association.

LaSalle received two trophies for the dual recognition in the 17th annual scholastic press convention at Parkville Senior High School in Baltimore County. More than 800 students and advisers attended.

John Mewshaw is photographer for "The Torch," and he and James Wilkinson serve as co-editors. Brother Richard is faculty moderator.

St. Maria Goretti High in Hagerstown was chosen for top recognition, that of the best scholastic newspaper in all divisions in the state.

No first-place winners were chosen among Maryland junior-senior high school entrants. Fort Hill High School received first second-place ranking and Allegany High School was chosen for third second-place standing.

The Le Souvenir, published by Glen Burnie High School in Glen Burnie, was named the best yearbook. Chips, published by Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, was selected as the best high school magazine.

The Pentagonal, published by Holabird Junior High School, was selected as best in art and photography in junior highs.

Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School's Chips was named as the school magazine with the best art and photography.

County Gets $15,669 In Liquor Taxes

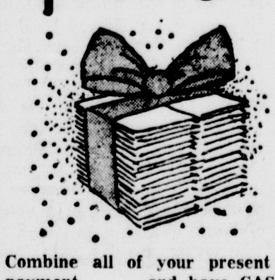

Allegany County received $15,669 from the State Comptroller's office as its share of tax revenues received from alcoholic beverages during the third quarter of the current fiscal year.

This makes a total of $55,764 the county has received this fiscal year.

Garrett County got $1,015 for the last three months and a total of $4,446 for the three quarters.

Petersburg Trounces Moorefield, 14-3, To Retain Lead In PVC

Harman Hurls Vikings To 4th Victory In Row

Chuck Fisher Heads Winners' 18-Hit Attack

Petersburg's Potomac Valley Conference pacesetters trounced Moorefield, 14-3, yesterday afternoon in a game played through a steady drizzle at Petersburg.

The one-sided victory was the fourth without a loss for coach Wayne Barr's Vikings, all of the triumphs coming in PVC competition. Moorefield, now 2-3 for the campaign, suffered its third setback.

Righthander Roy Harman, who has gotten credit for all of the Vikings' decisions, went the distance and spaced seven hits, walked three and struck out seven.

Petersburg buried the Yellowjackets under an 18-hit attack, with nine different players collecting two safeties apiece. Chuck Fisher belted a home run and a single, and drove in four runs, and Joe Hines had two RBIs with a double and triple. Bill Thompson hit a bases-empty homer for the Vikings.

Bob Moran led Moorefield at the plate with a single and two doubles in four appearances, good for two runs batted in. Steve Earle was the starting and losing pitcher for the Jackets.

SPARKS CARDS—One of the early season pitching stars in the National League is Ray Washburn who has hurled four straight complete game victories for the St. Louis Cardinals. The 24-year-old Washburn, dazzled a crowd of 33,000 Saturday night at Los Angeles when he shut out the Dodgers on a brilliant three-hitter. He retired 20 men in a row before walking Ron Fairly in the 7th inning. Last season the Dodgers beat Washburn twice in his freshman year with St. Louis.

U.S. Yachtsmen Win Thrice In Pan-Am Games

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP)—A U.S. Air Force captain from San Antonio, Tex., won the center fire pistol event with a world record score for the United States' 62nd gold medal and U.S. yachtsmen won three races Monday in the Pan-American Games.

With the track and field athletes enjoying a day of rest, Thomas Smith captured the pistol shoot with a score of 597, the best ever recorded. William Blankenship of Columbus, Ga., an Army sergeant, took second with 594 points, also beating the listed world mark.

The record was 591, held by A. Kurtma of Czechoslovakia.

The United States won the sixth races in the Dragon, Star and Lightning classes of the yachting competition, which ends Tuesday with the final tests in the six classes.

Scimitar Beats Canada

The yacht Scimitar, piloted by Robert Smith of Lincolnwood, Ill., with Sigmund Nelson and Dr. Alfred Wenzel of Chicago as crew, scored 703 points to beat out Canada in the Dragon class. Argentine was third.

The Star class was won by Ninotchka, skippered by Richard Stearns of Northbrook, Ill., and crewed by Robert Halperin of Chicago. The boat scored 800 points compared with 499 for second-place Brazil and 323 for third-place Venezuela.

Thomas Allen of Buffalo, N.Y., was at the helm of Atom II, which won the Lightning class with 946 points. Anna Allen and Robert Chambers, also of Buffalo, were the crew. Brazil was second with 645 points and Argentina third with 469.

The center fire pistol event — which uses standard military or police weapons — led off a light day at the Games with other competition confined to volleyball, basketball, boxing and the pentathlon.

The United States now has nearly three times as many championships as the rest of the field put together.

Cop 19 Of 20 Events

The "Colossus of the North" took 19 out of the 20 swimming events and will probably run up almost as overwhelming a score in the other blue ribbon sport of the games, track and field.

Some American officials were asking if this makes friends for the Stars and Stripes, but an unofficial survey of spectator and participant sentiment indicated that to a large degree it does.

The crowds at baseball, composed to a large extent of Japanese living in Brazil, applauded impartially. A Brazilian on the street said: "It is a good thing, these Games. You (the United States) win but we are better, all the time better."

This Could Be Year Yankees Lose Pennant

New Yorkers Don't Scare 'Em Anymore

By STEVE SNIDER
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—This could be one of those years the Yankees lose a pennant.

Manager Ralph Houk remained serene as problems piled up but the word from the rest of the league sounded something like, "boy, oh boy, oh boy!"

The Yankees don't scare 'em anymore.

The Yankees scare 'em when Mickey Mantle, Roger Maris and Whitey Ford are taking their regular turns but there's no guarantee off their spring performances that those three are completely sound.

Reliever Bud Daley, a much needed lefty, is on the shelf for perhaps 60 days after an operation for removal of bone chips in his elbow.

Petitone Rested Often

Rookie Joe Pepitone, replacement at first base for the traded Moose Skowron, frequently gets a rest against lefty pitching and the Yankees already have gone into the trading market for a man to platoon with Joe—Harry Bright, ex-Senator purchased from Cincinnati.

There are other chinks in the Yankee armor, including the pitching, and it's enough to boost the spirits of every club in the league with a shot at the flag.

Hoping for the worst is a traditional American League pastime. Every once in awhile the worst does happen and another club slips in as champ.

This is Houk's third season as Yankee manager. And for any manager who has won two straight pennants, the third year is critical.

As the late Mickey Cochrane said once during his tenure with the Detroit Tigers: "The first pennant is rough, two straight is murder and trying to win three in a row is guaranteed to give you ulcers."

Mantle, Maris and Ford are likely to pull off some prodigious feats along the way but even the Yankees need all three for regular duty, although Houk has insisted, "We could win without Ford."

Missed Several Games

Mantle missed several games because of a bruised rib cage but the chronic worry about Mickey is his chronically ailing left knee.

Casey Stengel calls Mantle the "greatest one-legged ball player in history."

As events proved a year ago, the Yankees don't zoom with Mickey out of action.

Maris, the home run king with 61 in '61, has been plagued by a pulled hamstring muscle in one thigh. Rog is regarded as a slow healer. That may or may not be significant.

And Yankee miseries of the early spring may not be significant, either. But you can't blame the other guys for hoping. They deserve a place in the sun, too.

Pitching Hints

Dodgers' Don Drysdale Stresses Legs, Arms And Good Fast Ball

BY DON DRYSDALE
Written for AP Newsfeatures

If you ever expect to become a good pitcher you must be fit. I mean top physical condition. Your legs and arms must be in shape.

Your legs will hurt if they are not in shape. And they will hurt if you carry too much weight. I'm 6-foot-6 and could easily put on weight. But if I did I wouldn't have won 25 games as I did last year. I went from 225 pounds to 205-207. I pitched most of the season at that weight.

After you think your legs are in shape you must work on different pitches. But first get your control before you start trying different pitches.

A youngster, just as in the major leagues, is better off if he tries to keep his control low. Most power hitters like the high pitch.

A youngster must also take proper care of himself. He must warm up properly by taking plenty of time even if he is in shape. When he stops pitching he should wear a jacket. If he gets wet he should change into a dry sweatshirt.

If a boy works on building up his arm he will find that nothing will replace a good fast ball.

I wouldn't recommend young kids to throw a curve ball until they are 16 or 17. Get a real good fast ball first. Let the other pitches come where they may. If you don't have a fast ball you must work even harder on your other pitches.

So the better fast ball you have the better chance you have to get the hitters out.

Listen to advice, and try to get good advice. You must also observe. Try to throw the ball with a natural motion. Not many good major league pitchers throw alike so don't try to copy anybody's style.

Yanks Sell Bonus Player Blefary To Birds For $8,000

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees sold bonus catcher-outfielder Curt Blefary to the Baltimore Orioles Monday for the special $8,000 waiver price for first-year players.

Blefary, a 20-year-old graduate of Wagner College of New York, was signed by the Yankees last year for an estimated $18,000 bonus. He played at Greensboro, N.C., last year and was brought up to the parent club at the end of the season.

Under the rules, waivers must be asked on all but one first year player before he can be optioned to the minor leagues. And even the optioned player counts on the 25-man major league club roster.

The Yankees at first designated Blefary as the optioned player but following the recent trades pitcher Jack Hamilton and first baseman Harry Bright which increased their roster to 27 players, the Yankees decided to ask waivers on Blefary and the youngster was claimed by the Orioles. Waivers in such cases are irrevocable.

Calumet's St. Tropez Scores At Aqueduct

NEW YORK (UPI)—Calumet Farm's St. Tropez beat back Fauve's stretch challenge Monday to win the $10,000 feature allowance race at Aqueduct by 1¼ lengths.

St. Tropez, the odds-on favorite, paid $3.70, $2.60 and $2.20 across the board. Adams brought him along the six furlong distance in 1:10-3-5. Fauve returned $4.50 and $3.00 and third-place Udaipur $3.30.

Knicks Expected To Pick Heyman In Draft Today

Cincy Royals May Select Thacker

NEW YORK (UPI) — Art Heyman of Duke, college basketball player-of-the-year during the past season, was expected to be the first man selected by the New York Knickerbockers Tuesday in the National Basketball Association's annual draft.

Pickings generally were believed to be slim this year in the grab-bag of college players. The draft, in which each club will select in inverse order of its victory total during the past season, will start at noon (EDT).

Two small college All-Americas were expected to be claimed on the first or second round of the draft. They are Roger Strickland of Jacksonville (Fla.) University and Hershell West of Grambling (La.).

New York, which won only 21 games, will have first pick, followed by the Zephyrs franchise which has been transferred from Chicago to Baltimore.

San Francisco, Detroit, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Syracuse, Los Angeles and the champion Boston Celtics then will select in that order.

Each club first will be given an opportunity to draft a player from a college in the vicinity of the home city but no more than two clubs were expected to avail themselves of that choice.

The Cincinnati Royals almost certainly will pick Tom Thacker of Cincinnati University and the Celtics may claim Jerry Ward of Boston College. Teams making territorial selections give up their regular first-round opportunity.

Coaches Of Three Colleges Will Speak At Keyser Grid Rules Clinic May 10-11

Shockey, Sherman, Camp On Program At Potomac State

Coaches of West Virginia University, George Washington University and Virginia Military Institute will speak at the football clinic and rules meeting to be held Friday and Saturday, May 10 and 11 at Keyser.

The clinic is set for May 10, beginning at 1:30 p. m., and the rules meeting is scheduled for May 11 at 1 p. m. The Friday afternoon and evening sessions will be held in the National Guard Armory, Potomac State College, and the rules meeting Saturday will be held in the west bleachers down on the football field.

Coaches slated to speak are Ed Shockey, West Virginia University; Coaches James Camp or Joe Popps and Bob Frulla, of George Washington University and Bob Sherman, of V.M.I.

The program:

Friday, May 10:

1:00 to 2:30—Coach Ed Shockey, Backfield Techniques — Action Passes by Series.

2:45 to 3:45—Coaches Camp or Popps, Basic Offense.

4:00 to 5:00—Coach Bob Frulla, Drills.

6:00—Dinner at Potomac State College cafeteria for coaches. Players may eat at the Student Center for a nominal fee.

7:00—8:00—Coach "Bo" Sherman, Defenses.

8:15—Coach Sherman will show film on V.M.I. game.

9:30—All coaches and officials invited to smoker at the Keyser Moose Lodge.

Saturday, May 11:

1:00 to 2:00 — Football rules clinic conducted by Potomac Valley Chapter of the West Virginia Football Officials' Association.

2:30—Potomac State vs. Alumni.

All area coaches, players and game officials are invited to attend.

Those planning to attend are asked to notify John R. Shelton, P. O. Box 51, Keyser. It will be necessary to know the number of adults that plan to eat the Friday evening meal at the cafeteria.

All game officials should make every effort to attend the rules clinic. A different team of officials will be used for each quarter of the game.

The clinic is made possible through the combined efforts of Potomac State College, Keyser High School and the Potomac Valley Football Officials Association.

On Saturday, May 11 at 9:30 a. m., there will be a baseball game between Potomac State and Trenton (New Jersey) College.

Jack Fisher Gets First National League Win As Giants Nip Phils

Cepeda Drives In Winning Run In 4-3 Triumph

Mays Hits 100th Career Triple To Set Up Tally

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Willie Mays hit the 100th triple of his career in the third inning on Monday night and then came home on a single by Orlando Cepeda with the run that gave the San Francisco Giants a 4-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Jack Fisher, who came to the Giants from Baltimore in a winter trade, won his first National League victory as the Giants snapped a three-game losing streak.

Cal McLish was the loser as the Phils dropped their third in a row.

The Giants picked up three runs, with only one earned, in the second. Cepeda doubled and when Felipe Alou grounded to short, Cepeda was safe at third when Bobby Wine's throw to the bag hit him. Ed Bailey singled one run home and Fisher hit a drive to left center which fell between Wes Covington and Tony Gonzalez for a double and another run. Chuck Hiller's sacrifice fly scored the third run.

Wine singled home two Phillie runs in the second and then Mays slammed his triple off the center field scoreboard for his first extra base hit in seven games to open the third. Cepeda singled him home to end McLish and bring on Johnny Klippstein who retired the side and then pitched three-hit ball the rest of the way.

The Phils scored their final run in the fifth on a two-out single by Gonzalez and double by Covington.

Penn State's Rip Engle To Speak At Dinner For Fort Hill Athletes

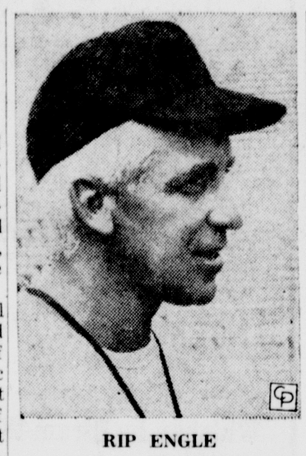

Annual Affair Set For May 14 At Shrine Club

Charles A. (Rip) Engle, head football coach at Penn State University for the past 13 years, will be the featured speaker at the annual dinner honoring Fort Hill High School athletes on Tuesday, May 14, at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Sponsored by the Fort Hill Booster Club, the dinner is held every year for all members of the school's varsity athletic teams. Booster Club president Paul Long, who is in charge of arrangements, stated last night that the affair is open to the public. It will get under way at 6:30 p.m.

Loman B. (Chad) Riley, well-known local sportscaster and raconteur, will serve as toastmaster.

The presentation of three individual awards will highlight the program. They include the James

RIP ENGLE

H. Hipsley Memorial Award for the outstanding football player, the Ted Morris Memorial Award for the outstanding basketball player, and the H. Clifford Spiker Award for the outstanding track and field performer.

The winners of these coveted awards are decided by the votes of their own teammates in each sport.

In Engle, the Fort Hill Booster Club has landed one of the nation's most successful college football coaches as guest speaker.

A native of nearby Salisbury (Pa.), Engle has been head grid coach of the Penn State Nittany Lions since 1950.

Following his graduation from Western Maryland College in 1930, he coached schoolboy teams at Waynesboro, Pa., for the next 11 years, and returned to his college alma mater in 1941 as coach of freshman football and varsity basketball.

Rip went to Brown University in Providence, R. I., in 1942 as end coach and two years later was named head coach there.

One of Engle's gridders at Brown following World War II was Paul Flick, the current track coach and assistant football mentor at Fort Hill.

Engle has never had a losing season at Penn State. During his 13-year tenure, the Lions have won 83 games, lost 36 and tied four. As an independent grid power, they take on some of the toughest opposition in the nation year in and year out.

Penn State's 1962 team posted a 9-1 record during the regular season and was voted winner of the Lambert Trophy, symbolic of Eastern grid supremacy. However, the Lions were upset 17-7 by Florida in the post season Gator Bowl.

Special guests at the dinner will include all of the Fort Hill coaches and their wives, and Drs. G. Overton Himmelwright and George M. Simons, team physicians.

The varsity cheerleaders will also be honored, along with Miss Gretchen Liepert, Fort Hill's Queen Football XIV.

Calder Trophy Goes To Leafs' Douglas

MONTREAL (UPI) — Defenseman Kent Douglas of the Toronto Maple Leafs beat out Doug Barkley of the Detroit Red Wings for the Calder memorial rookie-of-the-year trophy Monday in the closest voting ever conducted for a National Hockey League award.

Douglas, 5-10 and 175 pounds, won $1,500 in addition to the trophy and the distinction of being the first defenseman to win the rookie honor since it was first awarded in 1936-37.

The 27-year-old Cobalt, Ont., native held a 62.8 to 47.9 edge over Barkley in the mid-season voting. But the Red Wings rookie defenseman came on strong in the second half to out-poll Douglas, 51.3 to 36.6.

The voting was by hockey writers and sportscasters in the six NHL cities with a first-place vote worth five points, second three, and third one.

Douglas won $500 for being the first-half leader and $1,000 for being the overall winner. Barkley picked up $500 for topping the second-half balloting.

Balk Enables Mets To Beat Dodgers, 4-2

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reliever Ed Roebuck balked home the winning run during a three-run seventh inning rally that gave the New York Mets and Roger Craig a 4-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday night.

Craig, beaten four straight times by his former Dodger teammates last year, scattered seven hits and struck out seven in halting a three-game losing streak for the Mets and registering his second victory of the season.

Despite a recent easing of the balk rule by National League president Warren Giles, two were called Monday night by umpire Al Barlick and each one resulted in a key run.

Barlick called one on Craig in the second inning, allowing Frank Howard to score from third base with a run that put the Dodgers ahead 2-1. He then called one on Roebuck in the seventh which permitted Charley Neal to score the winning run.

LaSalle High And Campers Meet Today

Fort Hill Invades Beall; Mt. Savage To Host Bulldogs

Allegany High School's Campers open defense of the city championship they won last season when they tackle LaSalle High School's Explorers today at 4 p. m., at Stitcher Field.

Coach Chester G. Payne's team got away to a flying start by routing Bruce, 20-8, but were spilled by Mt. Savage, 3-1, in the second start in the Allegany County Interscholastic League.

LaSalle also started on a winning note by edging Beall, the league's defending champions, 5-4, but were held to a 10-10 tie by Valley High's Black Knights and fell before Fort Hill, 5-0, in the first intra-city game of the current campaign.

Last season, the Campers posted a 3-1 record in the city race and beat the Explorers twice during the regular season, 10-8 and 6-4 but lost out to LaSalle in the league playoffs, 9-2.

Fort Hill At Beall

Fort Hill, co-leader of the league race, is slated to do battle with Beall High School today at 4 p. m., at Frostburg. Mt. Savage, sharing the leadership with Fort Hill at 2-1, plays host to Bruce High School (0-2) at 4 p. m.

St. Peter's of Westernport (1-3) is scheduled to play the Northern High School Huskies today in Garrett county.

Three Potomac Valley Conference games are on tap today.

Bayard plays its first game of the season against Southern's Highlanders (0-1), the 1962 champions (7-1), at Bayard, Mathias (4-1) invades Wardensville to play "Pete" Vance's Warriors (0-3) and Moorefield (2-3) plays host to the Circleville Indians (0-3).

Potomac Visits Rams

Potomac State's College's Catamounts (4-6-1) invade Shepherdstown today for a doubleheader with Coach Carl Hartman's Shepherd College Rams.

Hyndman (2-2) entertains Northern Bedford County High School (1-5) in a Bedford County League game today at Hyndman.

Lonaconing-Barton Game Rescheduled For Today At 5:30

Rain wiped out the three opening day games scheduled yesterday in the Twilight Baseball League.

The Lonaconing at Barton game is reset for today at 5:30 p. m., with Cub Scout Pack 25 in charge of flag raising exercises. Mayor Arthur P. Hoffa is slated to throw out the first ball.

Other games postponed yesterday are rescheduled for Wednesday at 5:30 p. m. The Cumberland Comets will play Franklin at Westernport and Midland will entertain Gilmore.

Pirates Beaten In Extra Inning

Don Healy's two-run homer after two were out in the bottom of the eighth inning gave Berkeley Springs High School a 7-6 triumph over Paw Paw's Pirates yesterday afternoon at Berkeley Springs.

Each team picked up five runs in the first four innings and then went scoreless for the next three, forcing the game into overtime.

Paw Paw picked up one run in its half of the eighth. Clark Hamilton singled, stole second and raced all the way home when Berkeley catcher Sullivan heaved the ball into centerfield.

Southpaw Larry Cain toiled the full eight innings for the winners, and Roland Hamilton went the distance for Paw Paw. Hamilton, who racked up 12 strikeouts, was charged with his third defeat in five decisions.

Berkeley Springs' Michaels, with a double and single, shared batting honors with Healy. Clark Hamilton and Paul Kidwell each had two hits for the Pirates, with the latter banging a two-run homer in the third.

The loss was the fourth in ten games for the Pirates.

Marilynn Smith Is Victor Over Mickey Wright

Cops Titleholders Event By Stroke

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Marilynn Smith won the Women's Titleholders Golf championship Monday, sinking an 8-foot putt on the final hole for a one stroke victory over defending champion Mickey Wright in an 18-hole playoff.

Miss Smith, of Tequesta, Fla., carded a 35-37—72 over the Augusta Country Club course. She and Miss Wright were tied at 292 after the regulation 72 holes Sunday.

Trailing by three strokes after 13 holes the new champion parred No. 14 while Miss Wright took a double bogey 5. She picked up another stroke on No. 16 with a birdie, tying the match, and her par on the 18th clinched the match when Miss Wright took a bogey 5.

They were tied with 35s after the first nine. Miss Wright fell two strokes behind when she bogied the fourth hole but pulled even with birdies on the fifth and the eighth.

The soft-spoken Miss Smith won $1,300 in first prize money while the runner-up received $1,000.

Reaume Of Hershey Bears Fined $250

NEW YORK (UPI) — Defenseman Marc Reaume of the Hershey Bears was fined $250 and suspended indefinitely Monday by James Balmer, president of the American Hockey League, for shoving a referee in a playoff game at Buffalo Sunday night.

Reaume became irate when he was penalized for high-sticking in the second period of a game between the Bears and the Buffalo Bisons. The veteran rearguard shoved referee John Ashley and later attempted to punch the official, Balmer said.

Ashley handed Reaume a 10-minute misconduct penalty and a game misconduct on the spot.

Reaume, who formerly played for Toronto and Detroit in the National Hockey League, scored Hershey's first goal but the Bisons rallied to win the game 2-1 in overtime and take a 3-2 lead over Hershey in the AHL's final playoff series.

Notre Dame Player Hurt In Scrimmage

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) —Ron Bliey, a left halfback from New York, will be lost to the Notre Dame football team for the remainder of spring practice because of a fractured collar bone, coach Hugh Devore said Monday.

Bliey as a sophomore last fall was first team left half most of the season and had a three-yard rushing average. He broke his collarbone in scrimmage Saturday.

Bonjour And Jet Traffic Head Field Of Eight In Derby Trial

Investor, Colt From Maryland, In Race Today

Four Are Expected To Return Saturday For $125,000 Derby

By JOHN CHANDLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Eight 3-year-olds, three more than expected, were entered for the Derby Trial Stakes Tuesday at Churchill Downs but only four of them figured to come back in the famous weekend classic.

Patrice Jacobs' Bonjour, owned by a New Yorker but bred in California, and Russell A. Firestone Jr.'s Jet Traffic, a Canadian colt, head the line-up for the mile trial. But Jet Traffic, says trainer Del Carroll, will not return Saturday for the $125,000-added Derby even if he wins the Trial.

Two other Californians, Ambush Stable's On My Honor and Mrs. Leslie Fenton's Rajah Noor, and Walnut Hill Farm's Gray Pet are expected to join Bonjour in the 89th running of the Derby regardless of their Trial showing.

10 May Race In Derby

None of the eight going Tuesday, however, seems to have much chance against the outstanding big three—Rex C. Ellsworth's Candy Spots, Cain Hoy Stable's Never Bend, Greentree Stable's No Robbery. It still looks like a field of about 10 for the Derby, run at 1¼ miles at 4:30 p.m., EST.

The field for the Trial also includes H. J. O'Shea's Wild Card, J. J. Cherock's Investor, and Wake and Morancy's Sleuth Hound. If one of them won the Trial, let alone the Derby, they'd need a wheelbarrow to haul the winnings away from the mutuel cashiers' window.

Jet Traffic, Bonjour and On My Honor pack 122 pounds, Gray Pet has 116 along with Rajah Noor, the others 114.

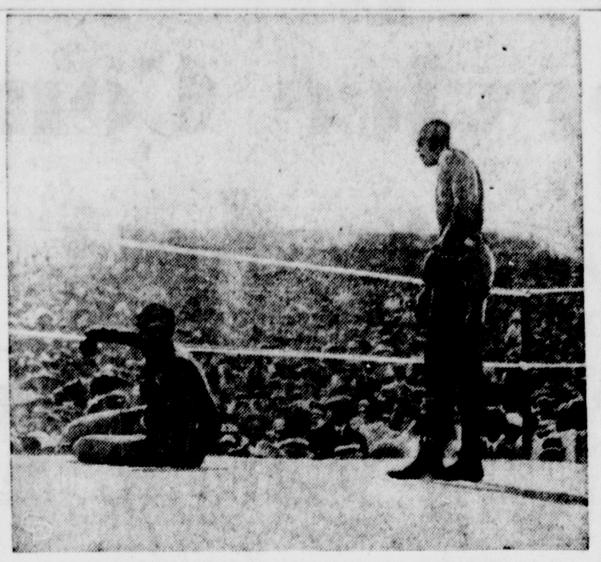

Bonjour has some credentials, having lost a nose decision to Candy Spots — current Derby favorite—at Santa Anita last winter. He also won the Bowie Gold Cup, and ran second to No Robbery in the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct.

Jet Traffic has terrific speed, as shown by his victory in the Bay Shore at Aqueduct last month when he flew a mile in 1 minute, 34 1-5 seconds. On My Honor won the California Derby, and Gray Pet was fourth in the Blue Grass Stakes last week at Keeneland behind John W. Galbreath's Chateaugay.

Shoemaker To Ride

Bonjour will be ridden by Willie Shoemaker, and Manual Ycaza pilots Jet Traffic. On Saturday, Shoemaker rides Candy Spots, while Ycaza has the second Derby choice, Never Bend. Paul Frey rides On My Honor, with Donald Pierce aboard Rajah Noor.

Investor, a Maryland colt, has started nine times this year without locating the winner's circle. Last November at Churchill Downs he bounced home in the final stride to nip Sleuth Hounds and paid $116.40-for-$2, which is his biggest claim to fame. No jockey is listed for Investor in the Trial.

THAT LAST HEAVY TITLE FIGHT IN NEVADA—Back on July 4, 1910, in Reno, Nev., Jack Johnson, the heavy champ, knocked out Jim Jeffries, who had retired and was making a comeback, in the 15th round. Here Johnson blasts Jeffries to the canvas. This was the last heavyweight title fight in Nevada. The next is due June 27, when Sonny Liston defends his crown against Floyd Patterson in Las Vegas.

Georgetown Defeats Mt. St. Mary's, 6-5

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chuck Devlin's sacrifice fly in the ninth scored Dave Scotto to give Georgetown University's baseball team a 6-5 triumph over Mt. St. Mary's. The win was GU's seventh in 13 starts.

Scotto walked to open the ninth and went to second on a sacrifice by pitcher Bill Solomon. He advanced to third on a wild throw to first and then scored on Devlin's fly to short right field.

The defeat was the ninth straight for the visitors.

Angels Say So:

McNally Is Worth Every Cent Of $80,000 Given Him By Birds

He's As Good As Any Southpaw In League, Leon Wagner Says

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI)—Take it from the Los Angeles Angels, young Dave McNally is worth every cent of the $80,000 bonus given him by the Baltimore Orioles.

"He's as good as any lefthander in the league," commented outfielder Leon Wagner of the Angels after McNally held Los Angeles to four hits before weakening in the ninth inning of a 4-2 Baltimore victory.

This was the third major league victory without defeat for the 20-year - old McNally. The young southpaw pitched a two-hit shutout against Kansas City in his major league debut last September and beat Cleveland, 8-1, with a seven-hitter, April 20.

McNally has only average speed but throws a fine curve ball and has shown excellent control thus far. In the 17 innings he has pitched, McNally has allowed only three earned runs.

The Angels were impressed with his poise and control.

"I didn't think he'd be that good," said Wagner, "but after the first time I faced him, I knew I was going to have trouble."

"He's got an idea of what he's doing out there," said Ken Hunt, who went 0-for-2 against McNally. "He's not overpowering, but he can throw to spots. He only gave me one ball to hit all night."

"The only problem I can imagine he'd have," said center fielder Albie Pearson, who had a single in four trips against McNally, "is control. But if he can get it over to me the way he did, I guess he won't even have a problem with that."

As for Bill Rigney, the Angels' manager, he'd seen about all he wanted of McNally for a while.

"Surprise me?" he said, when asked if he had expected McNally to be that effective. "Hell no. He just gave me a pain in the neck. He's a real good boy."

Everett Downs Hyndman, 6-3

Everett took advantage of Hyndman's errors yesterday afternoon and scored five unearned runs in beating the Hornets, 6-3, in a rain-marred struggle at Everett. Originally set for last Tuesday, the game was postponed because of cold weather.

Hyndman's Bob Fichtner held Everett to three hits, but seven errors led to the Hornets' downfall as they dropped their third game in five starts.

Larry Price had a single and double to spark the Hornets at the place. Blankley's triple, and singles by Lingenfelter and Norris were the only hits obtained by Everett.

Gary Border pitched the complete game for Everett, and walked two batters and struck out eight.

The boxscore:

Rodgers, Sanders Are Among Top Ten Golf Money Winners

DUNEDIN, Fla. (UPI) — Phil Rodgers, winner of last weekend's Texas Open golf tournament, and Doug Sanders regained their places Monday among the top 10 money winners in the PGA standings.

Rodgers earned $4,300 to take over ninth place with a total of $13,661.67 for the season. Sanders tied for ninth place in the Texas Open with Arnold Palmer, each collecting $1,050.

Sanders thus moved to 10th place with $13,250; Palmer remained fourth as he boosted his total to $26,075.

Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player and Tony Lema remained 1-2-3 in golf's dollar derby.

NBA To Abolish Territorial Draft Choice In 1966

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Basketball Association club owners voted Monday to abolish the territorial draft choice, although this will not take effect until 1966.

The owners adjourned their afternoon session for dinner and reconvened at night to take up other business matters. The NBA draft will be conducted Tuesday. The election of a new president to replace retiring Maurice Podoloff will be held Wednesday.

Under the territorial draft provision, which has been in effect since the league was founded 17 years ago, each team had prior claim to one college player attending a school within a radius of 50 miles of the home city.

This, for example, gave the Cincinnati Royals prior rights to sign Oscar Robertson (Cincinnati University). Teams making a territorial pick gave up their regular first-round choice in the annual draft.

The territorial provision even was extended to a high school player in the case of Wilt (the Stilt) Chamberlain, a Philadelphia High School product, by a special ruling, the Philadelphia Warriors claimed Chamberlain in the draft, even though he attended the University of Kansas.

This territorial provision has been opposed in recent years by clubs which did not have area colleges that produced outstanding pro prospects.

Montreal Alouettes Sign Enos As Aide

MONTREAL (UPI)—Ed Enos, former linebacker with the New York Giants of the National Football League and the British Columbia Lions of the Canadian League, Monday was signed as an assistant coach of the Montreal Alouettes.

The signing of Enos, 31, completed the Alouettes coaching staff. Earlier this year the Als fired Perry Moss with two years to go on a five-year contract and hired Jim Trimble away from the Hamilton Tigercats as the head coach.

Leo Cahill, one of the two assistants under Moss, was retained under trimble, while Enos replaces Indian Jack Jacobs, who quit last December and recently was signed as an assistant with the Edmonton Eskimos.

Ankle Injury Puts Cash Out Of Action

DETROIT (UPI) — Norm Cash, the slugging Detroit first baseman who won the American League batting championship in 1961, will be out of the lineup two or three days because of an ankle injury.

A club spokesman said Cash was in Detroit Osteopathic Hospital for treatment of the left ankle.

Cash injured his ankle 10 days ago at Yankee Stadium when a foul tip hit him. The injury was further aggravated last Saturday when the ankle was hit by a ball during batting practice and later in the game when a Minnesota player stepped on his foot.

The spokesman said the injury was not believed serious, but Cash was hospitalized to prevent the infection from spreading.

Ridgeley High Thinclads Nose Out Petersburg

Kessell And DeMay Top Point Scorers

Coach Tom O'Connor's Ridgeley High School thinclads eked out a decision over Petersburg High School varsity in a track and field meet held yesterday at Ridgeley High School field. The score was 48¾ to 47¼ points.

Petersburg won six first places, Ridgeley five and the high jump ended in a four-way tie.

Kessel won three events for the Vikings, copping the half mile and mile runs and the discus throw. Tom DeMay was Ridgeley's leading scorer. He captured the 100 and 200 yard dashes and ran on the winning 880-yard relay team.

Ridgeley has won three of the five meets in which is has participated. In addition to Petersburg, the Blackhawks won dual meets from the Allegany Jayvees and West Virginia School for the Deaf and lost to the Fort Hill junior varsity and Keyser varsity.

WVU-VPI Twin Bill Cancelled By Rain

BLACKSBURG, Va. (UPI) — A doubleheader scheduled between West Virginia University and Virginia Tech was cancelled Monday because of rain. There was no indication whether the two games would be played at a later date.

Virginia Tech leads the Southern Conference baseball race with seven victories and no defeats and West Virginia claims a 9-1 record.

Mays, Musial And Runnels Hitting Below Usual Form

Edwards And Causey Are Now Setting Pace In Majors

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Willie Mays, Stan Musial and Pete Runnels are among the more than a dozen big league baseball stars who haven't been giving the pitchers much trouble in the early stages of the 1963 campaign.

Mays, San Francisco's star outfielder, is batting .232 with 16 hits in 69 times at

Card of Thanks

Mr. & Mrs. Lee Miller wish to take this means to thank all friends and neighbors for their generous messages of sympathy during our sad loss.
Lee & Doreen Miller

I wish to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to my friends and neighbors for their kindness, following the death of my beloved husband, Rufus J. King. I also wish to thank those who sent flowers and the pallbearers.
Lulu King

RAITH — The family of the late Mr. Louis Raith wish to extend their sincere appreciation to all their friends for their many expressions of sympathy in cards, letters, floral tributes and lending of cars.
THE RAITH FAMILY

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, John W. Glantzer, who passed away one year ago today, April 30, 1962.
Someday, sometime, our eyes shall see,
The face we loved so well
Some day we'll clasp your loving hand
And never say farewell.
We'd like to think when life is done
Wherever Heaven may be
That you'll be standing at the door
Up there to welcome me.
Sadly missed by Son, Daughters and Grandchildren.

Ann Landers

When they return home we get a thank-you card. Not one of these relatives has left a dollar tip for the maids who kept their rooms in order. My husband says if we refuse to let them continue to visit, his name will be mud with all the family. Is it worth it?—UP TO HERE

Dear Up: These free-loaders know you are in the hotel business and that their visits are costing you cold, hard cash. But, obviously, they don't care.

Since you DO care, tell them when they write for "reservations" that you are filled up. If the only way to hang on to their friendship is to give them free vacations, their friendship isn't worth hanging on to.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

U. S. Soldiers Demonstrate Access Rights

BERLIN (UPI) — The United States Sunday sent 700 armed American soldiers in 107 Army vehicles along the Berlin superhighway to West Germany in a demonstration of Allied access rights.

An Army spokesman said the troops traveled in five convoys and cleared the 110-mile autobahn without incident.

The soldiers were headed for three weeks of live firing exercises at Wildflecken in Bavaria, an annual training program for U.S. troops permanently stationed in Berlin, the Army spokesman said.

25 UN Delegates Visit San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — San Antonio families took 25 United Nations delegates into their homes Sunday to give the visitors a first-hand look at Texas living.

The delegates, scheduled to stay with their host families until Tuesday, were in Texas on an eight-day tour sponsored by the Hospitality Committee of the United Nations, a privately financed agency.

The fast pace set for the visitors when they started their tour in Austin on Friday is not likely to slow in the two days to be spent with the families here.

Interest May Drop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interest rates on home mortgages may decline modestly this spring unless home buying spurts beyond expectation, according to the National Association of Real Estate Boards. Silas F. Albert of Grand Rapids, Mich., head of the association's Committee on Economics and Research, said the conclusion was based on a survey of 327 realtors in all parts of the country.

Joy Reports Income

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Joy Manufacturing Co. reported Monday a second quarter income of 30 cents per share on sales of $20,966,000 compared with earning of two cents per share on sales of $22,292,000 last year.

Local Firm Low Bidder On School Job

The West Virginia Board of Education is expected to award the contract for the construction of a new administration building and dining hall at the West Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind at Romney to Carl Belt, Inc., local contractor.

The bids were originally opened in January but the board then instructed the architects to revise the plans substantially to stay within the budget for the buildings.

Belt was the low bidder in January on the Romney job with $421,000.

According to the West Virginia Contractors Association, it now appears that contracts will be awarded with some additive alterations to the local firm.

The bids were opened for the second time on April 25. Architects are L. D. Schmidt and Sons, Fairmont.

Belt submitted a total bid with 16 additive alternates of $364,911; George Construction Company of Cumberland, $369,662, and W. Harley Miller, Inc., Martinsburg, $437,650.

Without the alternates, the general contract bids were: Belt, $295,571; George, $306,657, and Miller, $364,450.

The bidders on plumbing, heating and ventilation were Dougherty Company, Clarksburg, $90,400, with one alternate, $107,900; Stuart-McCunn Company, Clarksburg, $91,000, with one alternate, $103,800; West Virginia Heat and Plumbing Company, Charleston, $93,000, with one alternate, $104,000.

For electrical work, Baker and Anderson, Winchester, bid $38,440, with one alternate, $37,624; Miller-Liskey Electric, Hagerstown, $38,700, with one alternate, $42,100; and James Electric Company, Huntington, $45,674, with one alternate, $49,799.

The S. and T. Company of Clarksburg bid $2,284.56 for installation of kitchen equipment.

Museum Is Opened

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Adolfo Lopez Mateos has inaugurated a $1-million museum of the ancient Teotihuacan culture near the famed Indian ruins not far from Mexico City.

Israel Marks 15th Anniversary

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI) — Premier David Ben-Gurion, in his 15th independence anniversary message to his people, said Sunday Israel's armed forces are "ready and alert to any attack or aggression."

Israel has improved its international standing since it proclaimed its independence 15 years ago Monday, Ben-Gurion said, "but our close neighbors (the Arab states) still threaten to destroy us."

Israel actually became independent on May 14, 1948. But the nation reckons the date by the Hebrew calendar and the anniversary falls on April 29 this year.

Israel was born under fire when its Arab neighbors launched a three-pronged attack only a few hours after independence became a fact. It survived that attack, but the state of war declared then has never been called off.

Buys Data Firm

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hughes Dynamics, a subsidiary of Hughes Tool Co. said it has bought Advanced Information Systems, Inc., of Los Angeles from Electrada Corp. Advanced Information is in data storage and retrival for the City of Los Angeles and for the medical profession. Hughes Dynamics provides management and consultant services.

Monorail Planned

TOKYO (UPI) — Work has begun here on the world's first municipal monorail system — a two-track elevated line running nine miles between central Tokyo and its international airport at Haneda.

The monorail's 50 mile an hour trains are expected to cut travel time between the two points to 15 minutes. It now takes an hour or more to reach the airport by road during heavy traffic periods.

Agreement Signed

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — Hewlett-Packard Co. said it has signed an agreement with Yokogawa Electric Works, Ltd., of Tokyo, to form a jointly-owned company to make electronic measuring instruments in Japan.

City Swamped As Annual Trash Drive Begins

Two Extra Trucks Assigned To Task

Street Department crews were swamped yesterday as the annual Cleanup Week began in South Cumberland and the Mapleside sections.

By 3:30 p. m., 72 truckloads of trash and debris had been hauled to the city dump and Street Superintendent Ray Valentine estimated at least 10 more loads of debris was still on the curbs in the area south of Williams Street and the upper and lower sections of Mapleside.

To meet the needs of the drive, which is expected to be the biggest ever, the Street Department plans today to assign one truck each from the Sewer and Flood units to make 11 dump trucks available for the trash drive.

Crews will back track and pick up trash remaining on yesterday's schedule before moving to today's territory — from the south side of Bedford Street to the north side of Williams Street and the East Side section.

Veteran street workers said they had "never seen the like of it" as they began the annual task.

Mr. Valentine said this year's trash collection includes a lot more brush than usual, reflecting the ban on burning which has been in effect here for some time.

He said the drive could be hampered if there is a heavy rain today.

The schedule for the rest of the trash collection follows:

Wednesday — North End, north of Bedford Street and the business district.

Thursday — West Side from Mechanic Street to Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant.

Friday — check back and final trash pickup.

Women Voters Will Study Sanitation

"The Relation Between State and Local Government in Regard to the Solution of the Allegany County Sanitation Problems" has been adopted by the Allegany County League of Women Voters for study with the aim of taking any necessary or desirable action.

Officers and directors for the coming fiscal year were elected at the league's annual meeting. Officers are Mrs. Raymond O. McCullough, president; Mrs. Frederick Norton, first vice president; Mrs. Ronald Rosher, second vice president; Mrs. Walter Rissler, secretary, and Mrs. John Kneisly, treasurer. Mrs. Norton also serves as publications chairman and Mrs. Rosher as finance chairman.

Elected to the Board of Directors were Mrs. William VanNewkirk, Mrs. James Steele, voters service chairman; Mrs. Robert D. Schwartz, monthly bulletin editor; Mrs. Allen T. Foster Jr., Mrs. Ralph Isiminger and Mrs. Robert Wilson. Two members have been appointed to the board so far. They are Mrs. John Zimmerman, state current agenda and continuing responsibilities chairman, and Mrs. Daniel Shupe, publicity chairman.

The local current agenda topic also was voted upon at the last meeting.

All women citizens of voting age are invited to join the County League of Women Voters and take part in activities designed to further good government at the local, state and national levels. Additional information may be obtained from the officers and directors.

Truck Tag Deadline Here Tonight

Trucks, taxis and dealers' cars must join all the rest of Maryland's motor vehicles after midnight tonight in displaying new state license tags.

The office of County Tax Colleceor Francis G. Philpot at the Court House, which has only privately-owned truck tags and automobile tags, had a busy day yesterday as prospective buyers lined up in the Court House to make their purchases.

About 500 sets of truck tags and 50 sets of automobile tags were sold at the Court House yesterday. Office hours are 8:30 a. m. until 4 p. m

Local Girl Awarded College Scholarship

Karen Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Miller, 707 Columbia Avenue, has been awarded a freshman scholarship at Goshen (Ind.) College.

Miss Miller was one of 28 high school seniors from all over the United States who received a scholarship. It is valued at a minimum of $100 and ranges up to a maximum of one-third of tuition based on the student's financial need.

Goshen College has an enrollment of over 1,000 and is owned and operated by the Mennonite Church.

Veteran City Fireman's Retirement Begins Today

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

A genial member of the Cumberland Fire Department who recollects his first call, a brush fire on Wills Mountain 29 years ago; is keenly interested in local history; and an avid booster of the Cumberland Fair, will retire today when he completes day shift at East Side fire station.

HERMAN J. MILLER

Herman J. Miller, of 217 Valley Street, will be saying "so long" to fellow firemen at East Side station where he worked 27 years having started his career on January 16, 1934 as a pipeman at Central fire station and advancing in later years to acting officer.

Early in his career at Central fire station he was approached one day by the late Fire Chief John E. Brennan, who instructed him to "go to East Side for a couple of days." And that is where he remained for 27 years.

Speaking of the fire department Mr. Miller said the training program for local firemen is a continual plan and that the fire-fighting equipment is modernized year after year. Smoke ejectors, pneolators and other lifesaving equipment have been added to the department which now has a full-time fire inspector.

Many Chances

With the growth of the city the personnel roster has almost doubled, the number of pieces of fire-fighting equipment has increased and the system of fire alarm boxes has become widespread.

Mr. Miller noted that during his career he worked for six fire chiefs including the late William L. Lindner and Mr. Brennan. He said he was fortunate in not being seriously injured while on duty which included two major fires — one at Peskin's Shoe Store during the winter of 1940 and at the Capitol Theater in the winter of 1935.

During his 29 years with the department he never worked at South End Station, although he did fill in at West Side for firemen on vacation.

Now that he is doffing his uniform for the last time, Mr. Miller will have much more leisure time for his favorite pastime—collecting historical photos of the Queen City.

2,000 Old Photos

He is the man to see if you are interested in views of Cumberland which date back to Civil War days. Mr. Miller, who has some 2,000 old photos, is planning to catalog them chronologically.

During the past decade he and his wife have teamed up to show the photos to members of local service clubs and church organizations. His wife operates the projector and he narrates the views on the large screen.

Mr. Miller is also proud of a collection of old programs and various historical accounts of Cumberland.

Aside from being a veteran firefighter, he is quite experienced as superintendent of concessions at the annual Cumberland Fair, having worked for the fair association for about 30 years.

This week he is busy working on the fair's premium program and any time after July 1 you will find him at the fairgrounds helping to get things in order for the big fair which annually attracts thousands of people to Cumberland.

Citing his family background, Mr. Miller said his late father, Benjamin Miller, operated a cleaning and dyeing establishment at 29 North Mechanic Street.

Has Two Sons

Mr. Miller married the former Stacia Bucy and they have two sons, Gregory S. Miller, Oxon Hill, a route salesman, and Emerson H. Miller, Lexington Park, music teacher in St. Mary's County Schools, and five grandchildren.

He is a member of Potomac Lodge 100, AF and AM, Cumberland Consistory Scottish Rite, Ali Ghan Temple Shrine and Cumberland Aerie 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Bowing out as a city fireman, Mr. Miller noted he has gotten along well with his fellow firemen and is happy to have been associated with the city.

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan, upon learning of his retirement, termed Mr. Miller a "good fireman of excellent character" who has always been willing to assist in any activity the city has undertaken.

Maryland Banks Make Payments To Lobbyists

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A committee representing 26 Maryland banks on legislation relating to interest rates and other banking matters reported to the secretary of state Monday that it paid two lobbyists $11,237.44 for their efforts.

The committee reported a fee of $5,200 and $473.25 in expenses for Ernest N. Cory Jr., Laurel attorney, and a fee of $5,200 and $364.19 expenses for William C. Walsh of Cumberland.

They represented the banks on an unsuccessful bill to raise the legal interest rate from 6 to 8 per cent and on other banking legislation.

Also received Monday was the first report on the actively lobbied bill to promote a consolidation of Maryland horse racing.

Maryland Jockey Club, operator of Pimlico Race Track, reported a fee of $2,500 and expenses of $172.76 for Herbert R. O'Conor Jr. O'Conor, state campaign manager for Gov. Tawes in the last election, also represented Bowie and Laurel for the bill. They are among some 100 firms or organizations still to report to the secretary by May 2 on lobbying expenses at the 1963 session.

Represent Bowie

Bowie also was represented by Walsh, who usually represents the track at the legislature, and Laurel by its general counsel, Eugene Fienblatt. Harness interests were represented by Joseph M. Wyatt of Baltimore and Edward F. Farrell Jr. of Towson.

Insurance Company of North America, which earlier had reported a $1,500 fee for O'Conor, reported Monday a fee of $1,500 and expenses of $89.73 for lobbying efforts by Richard W. Emory and Thomas P. Perkins.

Another major fee involved $2,500 for Joseph Sherbow of Baltimore from the National Association of Independent Insurers.

The secretary of state's office received a flood of 86 reports in Monday's mail with 54 of them accounted for by the Committee of Maryland Banks and the institutions it represented.

The individual banks for which Walsh and Cory registered separately include:

Central Savings Bank Equitable Trust Co., Eutaw Savings Bank, First National Bank of Maryland, Maryland National Bank, Mercantile-Safe Deposit and Trust Co., Provident Savings Bank, Savings Bank of Baltimore and Union Trust Co. of Maryland, all of Baltimore.

American National Bank, Silver Spring; Citizens Bank of Maryland, Riverdale; Suburban Trust Co., Hyattsville; First National Bank of St. Marys, Leonardtown; and the Citizens Bank of St. Marys, Lexington Park.

Farmers and Merchants-Citizens National Bank, Frederick; the Frederick Savings and Trust Co., Frederick; Western Maryland Trust Co., Frederick; Myersville Savings Bank, Myersville; Carroll County Bank and Trust Co., Westminster; Nicodemus National Bank, Hagerstown; Hagerstown Trust Co.

Must Report

Elkton Banking and Trust Co.; the First National Bank of Aberdeen; the Forest Hill State Bank, Forest Hill; Calvin B. Taylor Banking Co., Berlin; and Bank of Crisfield.

Organizations with regular employes who lobby for them are required to report expenses and proportion of salary devoted to time spent in legislative lobbying.

The Maryland State Teachers Association reported a total of $4,791.66 for its three fulltime employes who participated in legislative activity: $250 as five days salary and expenses of $55.45 for executive secretary Milson Raver; $1,710.72 as 44 days salary and $673.66 in expenses for Robert Y. Dubel, associate executive secretary; and $1,174.95 as 45 days salary and $926.88 in expenses for John H. Downs, associate in field service and legislation.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Hagerstown, reported $1,400 salary and $1,880 expenses for A.H. Bartles Sr.

Investigation Continues In ABL Explosion

Hercules President Visits Families

Investigation teams from Hercules Powder Company and the U. S. Navy are continuing efforts to determine the cause of an early-morning explosion which killed three men and injured 10 others Saturday at Allegany Ballistics.

The tragic accident, which occurred in a rocket processing building, happened just several days after the plant had surpassed 10,000,000 man-hours of accident-free work, a new safety record for the industry.

John C. Foster, manager at ABL, issued the following statement last night:

"We are unable to express adequately our sympathy for the families of those employes whom we have lost. We pray for divine sustenance to them in their bereavement. We also pray for the speedy recovery of our employes who were injured.

"It would be impossible for me to express proper recognition of the individual performance of the many people and agencies who lent aid and assistance in connection with the tragedy at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory this past weekend.

"The understanding and cooperation which we received from Navy officials and personnel, the various news agencies, radio stations, local fire departments, ambulance services, Memorial and Sacred Heart hospitals, public service agencies, the offers of assistance and expressions of sympathy from our subcontractors and the outstanding performance of our wonderful employes are appreciated beyond our power of expression. It is a privilege and a source of intense pride to be associated with such people."

Sunday afternoon, Henry A. Thouron, president of Hercules Powder Company; John R. Ryan, assistant general manager of the Explosives Department; Mr. Foster, ABL manager; and Lt. Cmdr. James W. Kehoe, Bureau of Naval Weapons Branch Representative; visited the wives and families of the deceased to offer condolences and any assistance they may need.

Mr. Thouron, in expressing his shock and sorrow, said, "I join Herculites everywhere in conveying my deepest sympathy to the families and relatives of those who lost their lives in this tragic accident. Our hearts go out to the wives and relatives of these men in this time of sorrow."

Earlier, the Hercules president inspected the site of the accident and heard reports from members of the study teams which are working to determine the cause of the explosion.

Few Interruptions Seen

Mr. Foster said work that would have been done at the destroyed rocket processing building will be carried on at other Hercules plants. There will be little interruption of other operations at ABL.

Members of the teams investigating the accident include:

From Hercules Powder Company, Wilmington, Del.; Jack D. Hayes, general manager, Explosives Department; C. T. Butler, director, Chemical Propulsion Division; Lewis W. Greiner, manager of safety, Explosives Department; James E. Settles, manager of production engineering, Chemical Propulsion Division; Duard H. Little, director of Navy Programs; and Richard Winer, program director.

From the Bureau of Naval Weapons: Lt. Cmdr. J. R. Hawvermale, assistant director, Missile Propulsion Division, and H.

2 ABL Employes Released From Local Hospitals

Two of the six Allegany Ballistics Laboratory employes who were injured in Saturday's explosion have been released from local hospitals.

Leo Wempe, 43, of 601 Oldtown Road, was released from Sacred Heart Hospital, and Kenneth Trenter, 38, Rawlings, was discharged from Memorial Hospital.

Still hospitalized in Memorial Hospital are Clarence Raley, 30, of Rawlings, and Bernard Keating, 28, Frostburg. Both were reported "satisfactory" last night. Patients in Sacred Heart Hospital are Dennis L. Yaider, 25, of 11 Humbird Street, and Billy Sundbye, 53, of 731 National Highway. They also are "satisfactory."

Travelers Credited As Life Savers

A 22-year-old Romney, W. Va., man who was reported in "good" condition last night at Memorial Hospital, probably owes his life to the fact that three men from Republic, Pa., happened to be driving along West Virginia Route 28 about two miles south of Fort Ashby about 3:30 a. m. Sunday.

The Romney man, William L. Brown, was knocked unconscious when his car struck a tree. The rear of the car was burning when the three Pennsylvanians, Robert Pavina, Ralph Schock and Harry Jordon, drove by.

They stopped when they saw the unconscious man in the car and pulled him to safety before flames swept over the car.

They called the Fort Ashby Volunteer Fire Company and 18 men responded. They were at the scene about an hour keeping the fire from spreading.

Brown was brought to Cumberland in an ambulance. He sustained a fractured right hip, severe and multiple lacerations of the face.

Observers said it was fortunate that the Pennsylvanians happened to be driving along Route 28 because there was very little traffic on the highway at the early hour.

Jury Verdict Sets Disability At 20 Per Cent

An Allegany County Circuit Court jury yesterday afternoon decided that a truck driver for West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company sustained permanent partial disability amounting to 20 per cent of the industrial loss of the use of his body as a result of an accidental injury in 1960.

The complainant was Garland R. Beavers, now 27, of 42 Ashfield Street, Piedmont. He had appealed a decision of the State Workmen's Compensation Commission signed by Commissioner Paul T. Pitcher on April 26, 1962.

Commissioner Pitcher also had ruled that Beavers' permanent partial disability amounted to 20 per cent of the industrial loss of the use of his body. However, he decided that only 10 per cent was attributed to his accidental injury of August 9, 1960, and the other 10 per cent was caused by a preexisting condition.

The big difference with yesterday's jury verdict was that the jury decided that none of his disability was attributable to a preexisting condition.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris presided at the trial. William E. Cessna was foreman of the jury. Simon F. Reilly and Milton Gerson were attorneys for Beavers and Horace P. Whitworth Jr. was attorney for the company.

Beavers injured his back while lifting a trailer on or about August 9, 1960.

Jaycees Will Elect

The Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce will hold its annual election of officers tomorrow at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

The dinner meeting will begin at 6:30 p. m., according to John D. May, president of the Jaycees.

Frederick J. Hill, chairman of the nominating committee, said the committee has prepared a list of candidates, but nominations also will be accepted from the floor tomorrow night.

Nominated for president are D. Alan Douglas and Robert M. Hutcheson. Vice president candidates are Richard G. Cover, Ronald E. Chapman and Pete Robb.

Others nominated for offices include Gaylord Brooks, state director; Ernest C. Kessell, secretary, and Virgil Twigg, treasurer.

New officers who are elected tomorrow night will be installed at a banquet early in June.

The local Jaycee organization presently has 105 members.

Is Injured

A young Flintstone man was hospitalized yesterday afternoon with injuries he received when he was struck by a falling tree.

William Trail, 21, was reported in "good" condition last night at Memorial Hospital with abrasions of his chest and back and a laceration of his chin.

Trail told hospital attendants he was bending over a saw when an oak tree fell, striking him across the back. The accident occurred about 3 p. m. on Green Ridge.

Evaluation Center Leader Will Visit County May 10

Dr. Raymond L. Clemens, director of the Children's Evaluation Center of the University of Maryland School of Medicine, is making a visit to Western Maryland on Friday, May 10, according to Homer S. Higgins, county supervisor of pupil personnel.

That morning Dr. Clemens will meet with students and teachers at Frostburg State Teachers College. Starting at 1:30 p. m. that day Dr. Clemens will meet with Allegany County school principals, staff members and other interested professional people and laymen at West Side School.

The University of Maryland Children's Evaluation Clinic makes available to Allegany County people a comprehensive service for children in need of full evaluation in the neurological, psychological, physical and psychiatric areas.

Among those invited to the West Side School session were the deputy state health officer, acting county health officer, Mrs. Jennie Grahame, administrative assistant in the health department; the department's nursing staff, mental health clinicians, League for Women Voters, Associated Charities and other interested professional people and laymen.

In Murder Play

Ann Powell and Doc Webster will appear in the Algonquin Players' 22d production, "Write Me a Murder," Wednesday and Thursday at 8:15 p. m. at the Maryland Theatre. Miss Powell, remembered for her role as Rosemary in "Picnic," will portray Dr. Elizabeth Woolley, and Mr. Webster, also a Players veteran, will play the role of Hon. Clive Rodingham. Tickets are available at the box office.

10 County Teachers Get Summer Scholarships

At least 10 teachers in Allegany County public high schools have been awarded National Science Foundation scholarships for summer study, according to Jack A. Petry, supervisor of high schools.

The summer institute program of the National Science Foundation was created in recognition of the important role of teachers in developing our scientific manpower potential. The institutes are designed to strengthen the subject-matter competence of science and mathematics teachers.

Financial assistance from the National Science Foundation makes possible the attendance of many teachers who would otherwise need to supplement their income from summer occupations not related to their profession.

Some 422 institutes for secondary school teachers are scheduled for this summer. Funds are available to provide financial assistance for about 21,000 high school teachers of science and/or mathematics.

Two of these scholarships have been awarded Allegany High School teachers. Eugene C. Harris, 919 Weires Avenue, LaVale, will study the chemical bond approach at Reed College, Portland, Ore. He teaches chemistry. James E. Mellon, RFD 3, who teaches physics and advanced mathematics, will study fundamentals of optics and differential equations at the Milwaukee branch of the University of Wisconsin.

Robert K. Morris, 194 Argyle Street, Keyser, who teaches biology, physics, chemistry and science at Flintstone High School, will study earth science and meteorology at the University of Puerto Rico.

Three teachers at Beall High School in Frostburg have been awarded scholarship but only one is a National Science Foundation scholarship for the summer. Gerald P. Calhoun, 24 Stoyer Street, Frostburg, science and biology teacher, will study biology this summer at Indiana University. Delmar L. Schell, Scherr, W. Va., who also teaches biology and general science, will study biology during the academic year at West Virginia University. John Delbert Kelly, 1211 Bedford Street, who teaches mathematics, algebra and is a guidance counselor at Beall, has been accorded a National Defense Education Art scholarship for study in guidance at Purdue University in Indiana.

Three members of the Fort Hill High School faculty have received National Science Foundation scholarships for summer study. Richard S. Gilpin, 19 "C" Avenue, Potomac Park, science teacher, will study astronomy and geology at Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa. Mrs. Madeline L. Mewshaw, 338 Mountain View Drive, teacher of algebra and geometry, will study mathematics this summer at the University of Vermont. James C. Engle, RFD 2, Frostburg, psychology teacher, will study experimental psychology at Pomona College's graduate school in Claremont, Calif.

Mt. Savage High School will have two of its teachers at summer institutes. James P. Winner, 413 Pulaski Street, who teaches trigonometry, algebra and commercial arithmetic, will study mathematics at the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va. J. William Richmond, Lonaconing, who teaches biology and science, will study biology at Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va.

Girl, 14, Hurt In Crash

A 14-year-old Bedford, Pa. girl was hospitalized yesterday with a fractured right shoulder sustained in a one-car accident near Rainsburg on Route 326.

Bonnie Tew, a passenger in the car driven by Dale Fletcher, 28, of Star Route, Everett, was admitted to Bedford County Memorial Hospital following the accident about 6:30 p. m.

Police said Fletcher was driving in the rain south on the highway at a speed "too fast for the wet highway," lost control as he attempted to negotiate a left curve, ran off the road and hit a tree. Two guard rails and about 50 feet of the fence were damaged.

Plumbers To Meet

Local 489, Plumbers and Steam fitters Union, will meet Friday at 8 p. m. in the Allegany Labor Temple.

Weatherholt Mental Health Drive Leader

F. Allan Weatherholt, 419 Fairmont Lane, local trial magistrate and newsman, will be general chairman of the 1963 fund raising campaign in Allegany County for the Maryland Association for Mental Health, Inc.

Mr. Weatherholt was named to the position by Congressman Carlton R. Sickles, who is serving as state-wide chairman.

The annual campaign to raise funds for the care of the mentally ill, for research and for an educational program, is held each year in May. Over 1,000 chapters in 47 states launched the drive Sunday, the start of Mental Health Week.

The campaign slogan this year is "Save the Lost Children," because of the growing problem of emotional distress among young people. This area has been neglected, officials said, and special emphasis will be placed on this phase of mental health during Mental Health Month in May.

Seeks New Facilities

The National Association for Mental Health, Mr. Weatherholt said, together with its chapters and divisions, works to create psychiatric treatment facilities in the communities. These include psychiatric clinics, psychiatric service in general hospitals, 24-hour emergency treatment services and suicide prevention clinics. They also set up after-care and rehabilitation programs for the recovered patient and carry on a program of public education throughout the year.

The educational program is designed to help reduce the fear and prejudice about mental illness and to provide public with information on what to do when mental illness strikes a member of the family, friend or neighbor.

Bell-Ringer Drive

Mr. Weatherholt said the county is being organized for a house-to-house solicitation to be known as a Bell-Ringer drive. Within the next few days he plans to name various chairmen and committee members.

Mr. Weatherholt has long been active in health, welfare and civic, social and political affairs in the community. He has directed fund campaigns for Central YMCA, Allegany County Red Cross Chapter, American-Greek War Relief and the Allegany-Garrett Heart Association.

He is a past president of the Heart Association, West Side PTA; served many years on the board of directors of Cumberland Community Chest, Central YMCA, Girl Scout Council and other organizations. He is presently chairman of the Allegany County Commission on Alcoholism, a national affiliate, and the Allegany County Social and Welfare Workers Group.

He also is a member of the Democratic State Central Committee, vice president of the Trial Magistrates Association of Maryland and a member of the organization committee for the Maryland Courts of Limited Jurisdiction Conference. He also is a trustee on the Allegany County Library Board.

Mr. Weatherholt is married and lives with his wife and two sons on the West Side. He is a member of the editorial staff of The Cumberland News, in addition to his duties as a magistrate.

Chiropractic Care Bill Is Facing Veto

Tawes Favors Study Of Other Fields

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes indicated Monday he will veto a bill which would include chiropractic treatment under the state medical care program for the needy.

"I'm afraid to do anything that would do violence to disturb the good care that is being received under this program," Tawes told medical doctors and chiropractors who opposed each other at a two-hour hearing on the bill.

"I am inclined to believe this bill should be vetoed and a study made to determine what should be done about these other fields (outside the medical profession)."

He said osteopaths and others also render services which are not strictly medical and which are not covered by the bill.

"I think there should be a study made of the whole problem," Tawes said.

Veto Is Urged

He cited from a folder letters and wires of oppositon from welfare and health officials, hospitals, the State Conference on Social Welfare, American Cancer Society, the Heart Association of Maryland, the Commission on aging and one from the Hagerstown Chamber of Commerce.

He said he would study the testimony at Monday's hearing with his staff before reaching a final decision, but he left little doubt that the veto will be forthcoming.

Spokesmen for the medical profession said the chief danger in including chiropractors under the program is that they are not qualified to render a complete medical diagnosis.

Dr. Robert E. Farber, commissioner of health for Baltimore City, said there are many diseases which might manifest themselves as back ailments and which, if not properly diagnosed, might cause serious damage to the patient and to the community.

"The city health department is 100 per cent against this bill and we urge you to veto it," Dr. Farber said.

Dr. Perry F. Prather, state commissioner of health, said the State Board of Health and Mental Hygiene unanimously opposes the bill. He said Maryland's program of medical treatment for the indigent is a model for the nation and to broaden it to include chiropractors would not be in the best interests of the program or add any care that patients don't now receive.

Dr. Baer Testifies

Chiropractors insisted their profession is qualified to treat patients under the program, has a good record of referral to medical doctors of problems they are not qualified or permitted by law to handle, and claimed doctors wanted to discriminate against them.

"If they had their way, there would be no chiropractic in Maryland," said Dr. Justin C. Wood of Salisbury, a past president of the Maryland Chiropratic Association and a practitioner for 40 years.

"But we are here. Why deny our services to the indigent sick? These peoples are taxpayers and have a right to the doctor of their choice."

Dr. Adam Baer of Frostburg, secretary-treasurer of the state board, testified as to training of chiropractors and said the profession's standards are more rigid than those for doctors and dentists who are now permitted to work in the state program.

Allegany '58 Class To Plan 5-Year Reunion

A meeting has been scheduled for tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. by the Allegany High School Class of 1958 to plan for its five-year reunion. The meeting will be held in the school library for all interested persons.

The class plans to hold a dinner-dance July 13 at Ali Ghan Shrine Club for its first reunion.

Questionnaires which have been sent out to class members as well as reservations are to be turned in by May 1.

The following committees have been organized for the reunion:

Questionnaires, Sandra (Long) Tice, Jean (Lilya) Fair, Marlene (Murphy) Cramer, Barbara (Arnold) Lowendick, Willa Mae Hansrote, Grace (Stafford) Kerr, Bonnie (Bauer) Fisher, Ma[illegible] (Rosenmarkle) Shoemaker, [illegible] Donna (Payne) Malone; decorations, Charles Cramer, Marlene Cramer and James Mullan; program, Richard Bittner, Raymond Fletcher, David Zais, Gene Kerr and Jack Fisher, and booklet, Dennis Knippenberg, Mrs. Tice and Mrs. Fair.

Questionnaires and reservations can be mailed to Mrs. Tice, 1059 National Highway, or Mrs. Fair, 644 Lincoln Street.

Water Use Down

Water consumption last week averaged 9,143,000 gallons daily, down from last year's 11,592,000 gallons. Water was flowing over the spillways at both Lake Gordon and Lake Koon.

Shopping Center Manager Has 15-Year Sears Career

SAMUEL MOSES

Samuel Moses, who has been manager of the Sears, Roebuck Company store on Baltimore Street since 1960, also will be in charge of the new Sears shopping center which opens tomorrow on Winchester Road in LaVale.

How does Sam Moses feel about leaving downtown Cumberland after nearly three years there?

"It's really going to be tough," he said, "I've never been in a town where the people are as wonderful as they are in Cumberland.

"On the other hand," he continued, "I'm looking forward to having the kind of Sears store in Cumberland I've wanted to see here since I arrived.

"It's going to be a beautiful store a proud addition to the community."

As you talk to the personable Sears manager, you realize the fine character of this man who spent three days on a life raft in the water off New Guinea after being shot down while serving as flight engineer on a B-17 during World War II.

Air Force Veteran

It isn't easy to get him to talk about his war record. This is understandable, since he was at Hickam Field the day the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor. He spent two and a half of the five years he was in the Air Force in the Pacific Theatre of Operations.

Moses was born in Donora, Pa., well-known for its famous athletes such as Stan Musial and Dan Towler.

He attended high school there, then after his military stint, entered the University of Pittsburgh where he received a bachelor of arts degree. About this time, he met Laura McClure from Finleyville, Pa., who was attending modeling school in Pittsburgh. They were married and now are the parents of three boys, Douglas, 13; David, 10, and Daniel, 8.

His Sears career began in Johnstown, Pa., in October, 1948. He served as service manager until 1954, then was promoted to assistant manager of the Sears store in Sandusky, Ohio. A year later, he became operating superintendent of the Lancaster, Ohio, store. In three years he was moved to a larger store in Mansfield, Ohio, as operating superintendent. He became manager of the Cumberland store in 1960.

Memorable Day

Moses reports that his assignment in Lancaster was quite memorable. The store was new, similar to the new store in LaVale, and the day it opened his youngest son, Danny, was morn. "We certainly had a hectic few days," he recalled.

Since coming to Cumberland, Moses had been active in civic and community programs. He recently served as president of the Retail Merchants Association. He has helped with the County United Fund, the Sacred Heart Hospital drive, and is a member of Rotary. He also is affiliated with the Elks and Masons.

When asked what he likes best about the Cumberland area, Moses unhesitatingly answers "the friendliness of the people." He pointed out that this is not just a "veneer of friendliness" but a deep-seated concern and interest in each other and the community.

"I have never seen people open their hearts like these people do for a worthwhile cause," he said.

Referring back to the new store, Moses said he is happy that Sears will now be one of the major employers of the area.

To sum it up, Moses says he feels Cumberland is a growing and prosperous community. Sears is providing an attractive new store for its many customers of the area.

Sam Moses is well-liked by the people of the community and he feels the same way about them. It makes an ideal situation!

One-Man C. of C.

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — A reporter named James Mason Hutchings kept travelers coming to California after the Gold Rush was over by publishing vivid accounts, extolling the beauties of the state.

Some of these accounts have been gathered together for modern readers by Howell-North Books of Berkeley, Calif., in a volume called "Scenes of Wonder & Curiosity."

Sears Store Has Service "Built-In"

Service is designed into the new Sears store.

Beginning with the 10-car automotive service center and the multi-car parking lot and ending with the customer package pickup center, Sears services are as varied as customer's needs.

What will probably become one the the store's most popular services is telephone shopping. A staff trained in telephone sales is on hand to aid those armchair shoppers who order merchandise from the company's famed catalogs.

Homemakers who visit the store, or telephane, can receive immediate help in planning changes in room arrangement, colors, fabrics and furniture. Interior decorating consultants will bring drapery, slipcover, upholstery fabrics or carpeting samples to the home.

Slipcovers, bedspreads, cornices and other items of interior decor will be tailor-made to meet customer requirements.

Interior decorators have their counterparts in the kitchen planners, experts trained to turn old kitchens into new, giving them both modern beauty and functional design. Planning sketches and estimates are available without charge.

Sears also services what it sells — and Sears service is available nationwide, an important benefit for people who move from one city to another.

Trained repairmen are on standby readiness to service anything Sears sells. They also are experts in preventive maintenance, to keep Sears appliances operating to the customer's satisfaction throughout its normal life.

For the do-it-yourself fans, Sears has a complete stock of parts for the mechanical items it sells. The customer service desk has a unique replacement parts viewing system which enables customers to get parts they need quickly.

Home improvement consultants can plan building, plumbing and heating work.

Enjoyment Of Cooking Is Defended

By JEANNE LESEM
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—I like to cook. In some eyes, this types me as a martyr, a time waster, a fuddy duddy, a freak.

Like other home cooks, I use some canned, frozen and packaged foods. But I also enjoy making and serving homemade bread, pickles, preserves, fancy desserts and sauces. Even wine vinegar and yogurt.

And I'm fed up with having my motives questions thusly:

"Whom are you trying to impress with that bread you spent hours making?"

"Your peach preserves are delicious, but have you tried Brand X? It's just like homemade."

"Maybe you did save money by making your own brandied chestnut sauce, but how long did it take you to peel the chestnuts?"

Some Enjoy Cooking

Let's face it—and I wish more people would—some of us enjoy cooking in the sense that artists enjoy painting and singers, singing. It's creative.

And cooking isn't always time-consuming. Appliances such as electric blenders and mixers provide shortcuts without changing basic recipes or flavors. I can't distinguish blender mayonnaise or hollandaise sauces from those mother used to make laboriously with a hand beater or wire whisk. Nor soup that simmered, unwatched, in an electric saucepan, from soup made on a wood-burning range.

But if I cite flavor advantage over prepared or packaged foods, a parlor psychiatrist is sure to suggest that this attitude reflects an infantile desire for oral satisfaction.

And if I mention economy, some people deliver a lecture on time-and-motion study. Certainly, there are occasions when my time is worth more than the cost of a commercially made product.

But not in the case of yogurt or wine vinegar, because neither needs attention, once the ingredients are mixed, and both can be self-perpetuating, indefinitely.

Yogurt Cheap

Three cups of homemade yogurt cost no more than one cup of the commercial. I've never estimated the cost of homemade wine vinegar, and will concede that it is less uniform than the commercial variety—the flavor varies according to the wines used. But the process does use leftover table wine advantageously.

Of course, such projects take time, a commodity in extremely short supply to most women with a large house and small children. I'm not suggesting that they or any other busy homemakers return to the culinary dark ages. But please, girls, let me have my fun even if it is your idea of hard labor.

Table wine remains drinkable only a few days to a week after opening, but can be converted into vinegar by mixing with wine vinegar culture and water. Cultures for both red and white wine vinegars and directions for making can be ordered in 12-ounce bottles from the Berkeley Yeast Laboratory, 3167 College Ave., Berkeley 5, Calif.

Lake Mead is the largest man-made lake in the United States.

Ring Makes Long Trip

HAYS, Kan. (UPI) — It's a long trip from the washroom at Chicago's O'Hare Airport to Los Angeles, but James T. Schaeffer's ring made it.

E. J. Spomer, associate professor at Fort Hays State College, found the ring in the airport washroom. Lost and found at the airport could not locate the owner, so Spomer brought the ring home.

It was a Montana State University ring, Class of 1957, with the initials "JTS" engraved inside. The Fort Hays alumni office assumed the task of finding the lost owner. A letter to Montana State revealed Schaeffer was the only "JTS" to graduate in 1957. Schaeffer is now an accountant at the University of California.

Schaeffer was contacted and revealed he had lost the ring during a stopover at the airport. The jewelry was sent to him.

The owner wrote Spomer that the ring had special significance because it was a graduation gift from his late father.

"I'm thrilled to have it back," Schaeffer wrote.

Food Is Psychological

UNIVERSITY PARK ,Pa. (UPI) — Some persons are actually seeking to satisfy their psychological needs rather than their stomachs when they buy food.

Harold E. Neigh, a specialist in consumer economics at the Pennsylvania State University, said this is true because there are two types of consumers.

One group buys food to satisfy biological needs and nourish their families and the other buys food because it may represent a status symbol or enhance their self-esteem. They take the physical attributes of food for granted.

According to Neigh, that is one reason some persons buy steak instead of hamburg when both the meats supply the same nourishment.

Woolworth's Returns Here

The F. W. Woolworth Company which formerly had a store on Baltimore Street is returning to the Cumberland area with the opening of one of its most complete and up-to-date stores in the Searstown Shopping Center, Winchester Road.

A company official was unable to report the official opening date although he said it would be in the "very near future."

The manager of the new store has not been appointed although some of the personnel have been hired by the company.

The modern store will be set up for quick service to customer, according to the spokesman, who said the store will operate out of the Mid-Atlantic Region with offices in Philadelphia, Pa.

Ultra-modern lighting fixtures and furnishings will go into the building which will house counters of varied merchandise and a full line of wearing apparel.

A lunch counter is included in the plans of the company which will offer to the public a complete line of goods. Pet animals will be available in the new store as an added feature.

About mid-April this year workmen were busy laying tile on the floor of the store which will have a frontage of 150 feet and a depth of 167 feet.

Frank Prichett, Millville, N. J. was carpenter foreman in charge of construction on the interior of the building. His job was to oversee the installation of the tile and fixtures of the store and he planned to remain on the job until the store opens.

A FIT FOR EVERYONE—The slogan for the shoe department at Searstown shopping center perfectly describes how completely the department is stocked. Father, mother, brother and sister can be fitted with quality merchandise in any preferred style or color, ranging from the sleekest pump for milady to working shoes for men.

Local Firms Help Ready Sears Store

Several local contractors have helped get the new Sears, Roebuck and Company store on Winchester Road ready for its grand opening Wednesday.

Local companies responsible for work on the new store are Walter N. Yoder and Sons, air-conditioning, heating and plumbing; J. E. Dennison and Son, painting; Tri-State Roofing Company, roofing and damproofing; Duckworth Brothers, ceramic tile; Hazelwood Company, grading, excavation, sewer, water and paving; Pifalo and Costello, masonry work, and Southern Iron Works, steel work.

Two other Maryland companies were instrumental in preparing the new store. They are the Overhead Door Company, Hagerstown, and John H. Hampshire Company, Baltimore, who did the plastering and is responsible for the acoustic tile and vinyl tile.

Other sub-contractors who have worked on the new Sears unit are Viking Sprinkler Company, Glanside, Pa.; Crawford Door Sales, Arlington, Va.; Valley Glass Company, Harrisonburg, Va.; Anning-Johnson Company, Alexandria, Va.; Alexandria Prestressed, Alexandria, Va.; S & T Erectors, Alexandria, Va.; Virginia Metal Products, Orange, Va.; Major Electric Company, Arlington, Va.; Horner Elevator Co., Washington, and Hardware Centre, Inc., Alexandria, Va.

General contractor for the store was Redding and Company of Baltimore.

Team Of Veterans Heads Sears Firm

A veteran team of men seasoned by years of training in all phases of merchandising heads up the retail and mail order operation known as Sears, Roebuck and Company.

The two top positions in the company's management are held by men with a total of more than six decades of service with the company. They are Austin T. Cushman, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, and Crowdus Baker, president.

A native of Albuquerque, N. M., Cushman joined Sears in 1931 as an extra salesman in the company's Oakland (Calif.) store. The following year, he was named manager of the San Francisco store, and two years later returned to Oakland as store manager. From 1935 to 1942 he was general manager of both the Oakland and San Francisco stores. In 1945, after three years as manager of the company's California district, he became general manager of all the stores in the Los Angeles area.

Elected vice president in charge of the Pacific Coast territory in 1949, he directed all retail and mail order operations in nine states. On May 14, 1962, Cushman was elected chairman of the board and chief executive officer—the seventh chairman in Sears history.

Baker, a native of Dallas, Texas, joined Sears mail order organization there in 1929. In 1935, he was named operating superintendent of the Seattle mail order plant, and later served in the same position in Boston and Philadelphia. From 1945 to 1951, he was general manager of the Boston plant.

Elected Sears treasurer in April, 1951, he became a member of the board of directors the following year. He was named vice president and comptroller in 1954, and has been chairman of the company's finance committee since 1957.

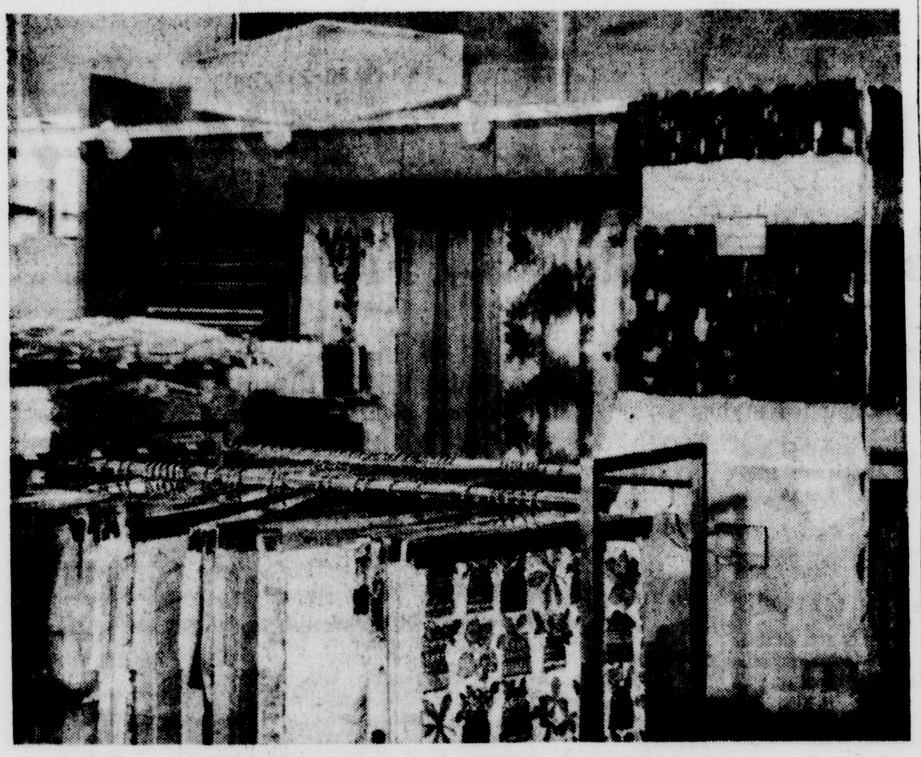

On May 9, 1960, Baker was elected president of Sears — the ninth man to hold that post since the company was founded in 1886.

Extensive Program Used By Firm To Train New Employes

The new Sears and Roebuck Company store in the Searstown Shopping Center will employ about 300 persons and all the new employes of the store have been given an extensive training program.

The Cumberland store had approximately 175 employes which meant the company had to hire about 125 new workers. In order to select these new employes, personnel supervisors had to review about 2,300 applications.

Once the new employes were selected, they all began a training program which included both classroom lectures and on-the-job training. The degree of training depended on the individual's job, but all workers received at least one week of intensive training.

Department managers in the new store underwent a rather intensive training period which covered all phases of the store's activities. Their training consisted of three weeks during which time they attended classroom lectures and demonstrations by members of the store's staff and company experts from other stores in the company's chain.

Sales personnel received approximately one week of classroom training and they will continue to train on the job even after the store opens. In addition to the training received at the LaVale store, a number of persons were sent to other stores throughout the country for training.

Besides the general training given employes, a number of persons employed in the buying, auditing and service offices also received specialized training, as did the employes assigned to the automotive service center.

The big task of directing the training program fell to George Crane, of Sears Pittsburgh office, whose speciality is personnel.

Crane said the company tries to train its personnel in all phases of store operations and it especially emphasizes courtesy and service by employes to customers.

Samuel Moses, manager of the new store, and all other members of his staff, took part in the training schedule and conducted lectures which began on April 1.

Since the store will be operating on a 72-hour week, a number of part time employes were hired and these individuals also received a week of training. Their training began April 10 and all were acquainted with the store's general operating procedure and other basic sales training.

Many of the employes of the old store on Baltimore Street have received promotions as a result of the expanded operation.

Approximately 190 of the store's personnel force will be engaged in selling activities, while the remaining 110 persons will be in various indirect selling activities such as credit sales, auditing, customer service and receiving.

Crane said the training program received a big boost by the many company experts who came to the LaVale store to help instruct and train the new employes in all phases of the store operations.

Microfilm Viewer To Aid Shopper

Customers of Cumberland's new Sears, Roebuck and Company store will have no trouble solving what often is one of the homeowner's most perplexing problems — finding the proper replacement part for the appliance he owns.

"All he has to know is the model number of the appliance and he can view a photo of the part he needs in less than 20 seconds," Samuel Moses, store manager, said.

This speedy identification is possible because Sears new Cumberland store is equipped with a unique microfilm parts viewer.

All the hundreds of thousands of parts in Sears appliances are microfilmed at the company's headquarters in Chicago, Moses explained.

"Once you know your appliance model number, all we have to do is select the microfilm magazine showing the parts for that appliance, slip it into the viewer and, within seconds, you can identify the part you need from its picture on the screen."

The next step is simply to obtain the replacement part from the store's stock of hundreds of parts, or the company's pool of more than a quarter of a million parts.

With Sears each year introducing 3,000 models of appliances requiring parts listing, the company finds its microfilming is big business. Sears uses almost three million feet of microfilm annually in keeping its replacement parts lists up to date.

Cashier Booths Speed Shoppers

Customers of the new Sears store on Winchester Road may complete their purchases in record-breaking time if they so desire.

According to Samuel Moses, manager, the store was built with special optional service cashier booths, each one designed to speed the shopper in a hurry on her way.

All the shopper has to do is take her purchase to the nearest booth, pay for it, and have it wrapped, Moses said.

Customers making COD, easy payment, or Sears revolving charge purchases also may use the booths which are conveniently located throughout the store.

The optional service cashier booths in no way affect Sears policy of giving personalized attention to customers who wish it. All departments in the new store are staffed with trained sales personnel ready to help customers, Moses said.

U.S. Visitors Termed Best "Publicists"

By EDWARD F. O'CONNOR JR.
United Press International

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) —America's best ambassadors are foreigners who return home after a visit to the United States, according to a man who should know.

The man is Antony J. Stute, vice president of Augustea International, Inc., a foreigner himself—but not for long.

Born in England of American parents and soon to become an American citizen, Stute has made an intensive study of world travel for his firm, which operates 1,200 motor coaches (buses) in Europe.

"The best ambassadors for America are people who have been here," Stute said. "If you could expose more Europeans to American efficiency it might wake them up, by the contrast to the fact that their system is antiquated."

He said the average European has an exaggerated fear of cost about coming to the United States.

"Europeans definitely have the idea that everything in the United States is abnormally high priced," he said. "The average European traveler is a shopkeeper or a retailer in the middle-income bracket. He's shrewd. He wants the most he can get for his money.

"We sell Europe to Americans for $14 or $15 a day, including transportation, meals, sightseeing and first class hotels. The equivalent cost to see America would be about 50 per cent higher."

Stute said things have been improving since 1962, when the U.S. government launched a Visit the U.S.A. campaign and made it easier for foreign tourists to come here by easing restrictions.

But one phase of it drew near ridicule from the European press and seasoned European travelers, Stute said.

"With true American enthusiasm, but with little finesse, the campaign was launched," he said. "It was good. But it was overdone by saying visitors could see America on $5 a day."

Stute noted that America's facilities are superb. "There are no finer in the world." But he suggested establishment by the U.S. government of low cost hostels to house European travelers while in America.

Determined Extent

Extent of a nation's territorial waters originally was determined by cannon shot range, or three marine miles, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Trader Takes Hay Baler, Has One Worry Left

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — Ted Britt, car dealer who has long maintained he's take just about anything in on trade, has one customer convinced he really means it.

E. J. Edwards of Hamilton, Va., looking for a used car, pointed toward the curb. "I'd like to trade in that hay baler over there," he said.

Britt was game and is even sure he'll find a buyer for it. The thing that worries him is — what will he have to take in trade on the hay baler?

High School Marrieds

FARMINGTON, Utah (UPI)—A judge has ruled the board of education here has the right to restrict the extra-curricular activities of married students in high school.

District Judge Thornley K. Swan said the ruling which keeps married students from holding school offices or participate in sports was not discriminatory.

German Official Director Of World's Only Tax Museum

BITBURG, Germany (UPI)—If it's any consolation to anybody, people have had to pay taxes for at least 4,000 years, according to Dr. Alfons Pausch.

Pausch ought to know. The Bitburg tax official is director of Germany's only tax museum.

The museum started as a private collection of the average taxpayer's constant cause of grumbles.

Last fall when Pausch was transferred to Bitburg, his private museum moved with him to find a new home in the former Benedictine Abbey of this town near Bonn. It now is appropriately lodged in the former tax barn of the Abbey.

Pausch proudly shows his collection. The oldest documentation of tax-paying is a replica of a bas-relief dating back to 2300 B.C. It shows the tomb of ancient Egyptian Vizier Mereruka in Sakkura near Memphis, with two men kneeling before the tax collector, while a third man, who refused to pay, is being clobbered by the tax collector's aides.

"You must agree that our methods have become more civil with the years of experience," said tax collector Pausch.

Among other documents, Pausch also displays a tax list of the medieval city of Trier, listing the habitants of Engelsgasse (Angels Street) in 1363 A. D.

Another document proves tax exemption also is known for ages, although it was harder to get. The document states that fathers of 12 legitimate children were granted an exemption in 1628 A.D.

A tax declaration form of 1764 undoubtedly would delight today's taxpayer. The form listed only four questions.

The museum also shows a picture of hte alst tax soldier of the Black Forest city of Freudenstadt. The grim-faced, moustachioed warrior used to pause at inns while making the rounds of the city's tardy taxpayers, thundering at them: "Do not booze, go pay your taxes!"

Pausch's collection, now kept up by the government at a cost of $25,000 a year to taxpayers, has items which do not please curator Pausch.

"This is the black sheep in my collection," Pausch said, pointing at the photograph of a Roman sculpture, showing Emperor Trajan announcing that the people of ancient Rome are tax-free.

"What would have happened to my museum if Trajan's example in 100 A.D. would have found more followers?" he asked.

Heavy Population

Some 40 per cent of the world population is concerned in the fighting in the remote borderlands of the high Himalayas. One of every seven members of the human race lives in India and one of every four lives in Communist China.

The green-winged teal is credited with flying speeds ranging from 30 to 160 miles an hour.

Sporting-Goods Department Has Comprehensive Display

The sporting-goods department at Sears Roebuck's new all-purpose store stands out like a Swiss cottage in this sprawling, sparkling ultra-modern shopping center in LaVale.

An open, peaked roof is constructed over the sporting-goods shop to serve as sort of a beacon for sports and outdoor enthusiasts. The chalet also gives an effect of setting the department apart from the rest of the store.

Just about anything the athlete or sportsman may need seems to be on display in the department which covers 1,400 square feet.

There is, for instance, a complete ski shop in the department. In addition to skis, all types of clothing, whether it be for the person who glides on water or snow, are available. Accessories of all sorts also can be purchased in the ski shop.

The same applies for boating. Various types of water crafts as well as outboard motors and trailers will be on display on a big uncovered patio adjacent to the sporting-goods department.

Also to be set up on the patio are tents and camping equipment, the types of which were tested by Sir Edmund Hillary, famed conqueror of Mt. Everest, in a rigorous 10,000-mile, 61-day trip from Chicago to Alaska and return. Sir Edmund is a member of a blue-ribbon Sears sports advisory staff headed by Ted Williams, the all-time baseball great.

Purpose of the staff is to advise Sears on the sporting goods it will sell. Williams selected for the board 12 men, each an authority in his field.

Others on the staff are Buddy Watson, archery expert; Bill Holland, outstanding authority on boating; Jack Twyman, captain of the Cincinnati Royals basketball team; Terry Brennan, former Notre Dame football coach; Ed Lubanski, noted professional bowler; Doug Ford, topnotch pro golfer; Bob Mathias, former Olympic decathlon champ and consultant on physical fitness; Othmar Schneider, former coach of the Austrian skiing team; Adolph Kiefer, water sports authority and former Olympic swimmer; and Murray Crowder, past president of the Outdoor Writers Association of America and consultant on hunting and fishing.

Williams, who was signed as Sears sports consultant late in 1960, advises the company on baseball, hunting, boating, camping and fishing.

Manager of the sporting-goods department, Ed Domzalski, formerly of Philadelphia, says all equipment in the sports and pastimes represented by the Sears advisory experts will be featured at Sears Town.

In addition, Domzalski declared, "We will have a line of equipment for scuba-diving which has become so popular in the past several years. Then, too, we have a wide selection of men's, women's and children's casual wear for outdoor living."

And for the hunter or fisherman who is too busy to cook while engaged in his favorite pastime, Sears even has specially-prepared food packages, the contents of which are ready for immediate consumption.

Famous Ride Unmentioned In Newspaper

BOSTON (UPI) — Years later, Longfellow immortalized Paul Revere with his poem about the midnight ride.

But in the story published in the Massachusetts Gazette on April 20, 1775 — the day after the ride ended — there is no mention of Revere.

Referring to the Battle of Concord Bridge, the newspaper said:

"Last Tuesday night, the (British) Grenadier and Light Companies . . . were ferried in long boats from the bottom of the Common over to Phil's farm in Cambridge, from whence they proceeded on their way to Concord, where they arrived early yesterday.

"Upon the people's having notice of this movement on Tuesday night, alarm guns were fired through the country and expresses sent to the different towns, so that very early yesterday morning, large numbers were assembled from all parts of the country.

"A general battle ensued, which, from what we can learn, was supported with great spirit on both sides and continued until the King's troops retreated to Charlestown."

The "expresses sent" were, of course, the alarm spread by Revere and his companion, William Dawes.

Moses, Musial 'M Boys' For Donora High

From an athletic standpoint, Sam Moses, manager of Sears Roebuck's gigantic new store at Searstown, is known as Stan Musial's former teammate. They were the "M Boys" of Donora (Pa.) High School in the late 1930s.

Moses and Musial played together on the basketball and baseball teams at Donora. Sam, a year ahead of Musial, played first while Musial was the baseball team's star pitcher.

Although a natural athlete, Moses was of the opinion while in high school that Musial had a better future in basketball. As events turned out, Stan didn't blossom into baseball stardom until he switched to the outfield after developing a sore arm as a pitcher in the minors.

Moses, who stands 6-3 and weighs 200 pounds, also played end on the Donora High football team.

A place in baseball's Hall of Fame has already been reserved for Musial, the great St. Louis Cardinal slugger, who is still playing and setting records at the ripe, old diamond age of 42. Moses, however, has beat his old "M Club" mate to the punch in at least one respect. He's been a "manager" for three years.

PTA Reform Credited For Record Meet

LOS ALTOS, Calif. (UPI)—Anybody who has sat squirming and bored through a long, dull meeting of any sort will know how members of the Oak School PTA felt when they decided to be different.

They decided that, in the first place, the faithful parents and teachers who always showed up shouldn't have to suffer for their fidelity. And, in the second place, activities of the Parent-Teachers Association were so important that something should be done to attract the not-so-faithful.

So, under the leadership of the now past president Wallace Cuneen, the Oak School PTA came up with this program:

—no more droning recitations of minutes and financial reports; pass them out in mimeograph form.

—Maintain a strict time limit; begin promptly at 8 p.m. and end at 9:15.

—Seat the parents at cafeteria tables equipped with coffee and cookies; no more rows of straight-backed chairs.

—Encourage attendance by setting up a pool of teen-agers available for paid babysitting.

—Most important of all, make the meetings genuinely interesting; no more lengthy discussions of whether the treasury can support a new television set for the third grade.

Cuneen said 900 persons turned out at one meeting that featured a speech by state Supt. of Public Instruction Max Rafferty. It was the largest PTA turnout in the history of Santa Clara County.

France Takes "Le Scotch" Over Cognac

ELGIN, Scotland (UPI)—France a nation of cognac drinkers, has begun to discover what Americans find so fascinating about "le scotch."

But the scotch the French are re-discovering is the higher-proof straight scotch, the only kind made in 1850 at the time blending became the fashion—and still preferred by the men who know scotch best, the distillers themselves.

One of these distillers, William J. Craig, director of Hiram Walker's Milton Duff distillery here — which makes malt whisky for Ballantine's, Teachers and several other brands—says he is puzzled by the growing vogue for "light" scotch in the United States.

He thinks this may be due to the way in which the straight scotch should be taken—well-diluted with water, sipped as though it were the rare old cognac which it resembles in flavor and smoothness.

Scotch when first distilled is as clear as water. Its color comes from aging in wooden casks and blending with grain spirits. Occasionally burnt sugar is added to give it the exact color desired. Whether scotch is light or dark, the proof remains the same.

Until about five years ago the French seemed to prefer blended whisky—usually 40 per cent single malt whisky and 60 per cent grain spirits—but one Paris bar began serving straight whisky and the drink quickly became a status symbol.

Now the demand is so great that several distilleries offer the straight whisky bottled.

"Skinflint"

The expression "skinflint" started in the days when flint was used to make fires. The flint had to be sliced off thinner and thinner for each new fire and the "skinflint" was the one who would use it down to its final layer of skin.

Early Road

First main American road built with federal money was the National Pike, begun in 1806. The road led pioneers from Cumberland, Md., to the territory northwest of the Ohio River.

Inside The Earth

There are temperatures hot enough to vaporize iron beneath the earth's thin, fruitful crust. Here pressures are so great that rock remains in a state of glassy solidity, being heated far beyond its melting point. These elemental forces occasionally breach a fracture in the planet's shell and cause what is known as a volcano.

"Dentists' Street"

Sidewalk doctors display their wares (gold teeth, incisors with heart-shaped inlays and dentures in red, green or black) on a "Street of the Dentists" in Phnom Penh, capital of Cambodia.

Egyptian Lotus

The lotus symbolized fertility and abundance to the ancient Egyptians because it grew in the Nile, center of life in Egypt. Lotus ornaments have been used by Egyptians for 5,000 years in tombs and temples, on walls and atop columns.

Poor Swimmers

Safety experts estimate that one-half the people in the United States are unable to take care of themselves in the water in an emergency, which means some 90 million persons are vulnerable to drowning.

Cumberland (LaVale) Maryland

Sears First Store Here Newsworthy

Marked Maryland Debut

It was an exciting day here 30 years ago when Sears Roebuck and Company came to Cumberland.

"Cumberland's newest business house crowded during early opening hours," said the Cumberland Evening Times in describing the Septemebr 7, 1933 event.

Hundreds of persons living in Cumerland and vicinity, the account said, visited the Sears Roebuck and Company's new retail store during the morning and early afternoon hours today as the city's newest business house was opened for the first time."

The first Sears store was located at 145 Baltimore Street, the old YMCA building, now occupied by Peskin's. The grand opening story continued:

"The sidewalk near the store on Baltimore Street was crowded long before the doors opened at 9 o'clock, making it necessary for an officer to handle traffic at the point.

"Manager L. A. Hansen announced the store will not close until 9 o'clock tonight. The same hours, 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., will be followed tomorrow and Saturday, but beginning next Monday, the week-day hours will be from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. and the Saturday hours from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

"A number of the early visitors," the account continued, "merely 'window shopped' but many sales had been reported at noon and business was improving in volume as the hours passed."

It has been improving virtually every year since the firm came here.

"Manager Hansen," the opening account said, "expressed satisfaction over the opening trade. Buyers showed pleasure over the complete stocks carried by the store, the first of this national organization's in Maryland, and the attractiveness of the displays as the courteous and prompt service of the 90 per cent Cumberland personnel."

The first Sears store here was staffed by about 15 employes and all five floors of the building was used to display and store merchandise.

The store opened here during the depths of the depression, indicating the company's faith in the Queen City's future and its strategic position as Western Maryland's top shopping, industrial and transportation center.

In the same issue which reported the store's opening, the Times carried a story of how Frederick Vining Fisher, field coordinator, thrilled some 1,000 persons here with an address on the NRA—the National Recovery Administration, which was described as a declaration of war against the depression which plagued the country.

Five years later, the Times of April 3, 1938, carried a story of the firm's plans to move up a block to its present location at 181-183 Baltimore Street. The account said:

"The Sears Roebuck Co., which has operated a retail store at 145-147 Baltimore Street for a number of years, plans to erect a new building here, according to John B. Murdock, local manager.

"It is said the location will be 181-183 Baltimore Street. The City Furniture Company and the Rialto Lunch occupy this site.

"Complete plans for the building will arrive tomorrow for the approval of Mr. Murdock. He stated last night he expects the building will be three stories high and the basement for retail sales and the third for a stock room.

"It is expected the building will be at least half again as large as the present structure, the Holland Building."

The firm moved on November 30, 1939, into its present quarters built by and leased from Vincent Buchholtz.

The store was completely remodeled and air conditioned in 1958, and provides employment for about 80 workers on four floors, including the basement.

Several employes of the store have been serving Cumberland area shoppers for more than a quarter of a century.

They include Miss Lorena Burke, 234 Columbia Street, cashier, who has been with the store for 25 years; John M. Gornall, 775 MacDonald Terrace, 28 years, and John K. Turner, 122 Springdale Street, 28 years. Miss Dorothy Judy, 80 Greene Street, has been a Sears employe here for 23 years.

The Cumberland store is classed by the company as a Class B-2 store. It has been considered one of the best Sears stores in the area.

Cumberland, said Manager Samuel Moses, "has been so good to us," and the store has been so successful that the company thinks it owes the community a better store for shopping.

This will be provided in the new store the company is opening on Winchester Road in LaVale.

Kinney Store Opening Due Shortly

Another of the many Kinney Shoe Stores where "Fashion Footwear for Smart America" is sold will be opened later this year at Cumberland's newest shopping center, Searstown.

The local store at 119 Baltimore Street will continue in busines said Glen D. Barker, manager for the past four years.

He remarked that the Kinney chain store is the oldest shoe chain operator in Cumberland having been established here over 35 years ago.

In Searstown the new shoe store will be located next to F. W. Woolworth's store, according to Mr. Barker, who said the tentative opening date of the store will be sometime in August.

Aproximately 3,600 square feet of floor space is planned for the store which will have a complete line of shoes for the entire family.

The manager for the new store has not been named. An additional five employes will be hired to staff the store. A similar number of employes work at the Baltimore Street store.

When the Kinney people take over the new completed building in the shopping center, employes of the chain store will install the shelves and complete other inside work.

Mr. Barker pointed out that Kinney, which has about 600 stores across the nation, established a store on Liberty Street about 35 years ago and later moved to a store room near the Western Maryland crossing prior to locating at the present site in 1949.

New First Federal Soon

Faith in the financial future of Cumberland is indicated by the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, 141 Baltimore Street, which will open a new office later this year.

The site of the ultra-modern office is the spacious Searstown Shopping Center located on Winchester Road.

Lynn C. Lashley, president of First Federal, who said the Searstown office is still under construction, anticipates an opening date sometime this summer.

John Schartiger, of Mt. Pleasant Road, an employe of First Federal since June 1955 and currently employed in the loan settlements department, will be manager of the new office.

Four tellers will be employed at the office where savings accounts may be opened and loan applications submitted.

Other services include the deposit and withdrawal of money as well as the issuance of money orders and travelers checks.

All processing and major bookkeeping will be completed at the present office on Baltimore Street, said Mr. Lashley.

The architect for the new structure which will be of modern design is William Carl Phelan of the Bank Building and Equipment Corporation of St. Louis.

Cumberland (LaVale) Maryland

Liberty Trust Office To Open At Searstown

The growing economy of the Cumberland area is being reflected in the establishment of another office of The Liberty Trust Company, 81 Baltimore Street, which will be built in the sprawling Searstown Shopping Center, Winchester Road.

Denton A. Fuller, president of one of the larger banking firms of Western Maryland, announces the new office will be the fourth to be established since the company was founded here in 1920.

He said the Searstown office, with full banking services, is expected to be opened to the public about mid-June, and new jobs have been created for at least five persons who have been hired for assignments to the office.

Cameron L. Otto, asistant vice president of the local bank, who is in charge of the LaVale office which was opened in 1956, will also have supervision of the newest office.

Plans for the exterior design and the color scheme and furnishings of the interior of the new building as yet have not been unwrapped to the public although indications are they will be eye-catching.

Smith-Behle, Baltimore architects, have drawn up plans for the modern structure which will measure 40 by 80 feet, said Mr. Fuller.

Since its founding 43 years ago, the Liberty Trust Company expanded its services in the establishment of an office in Lonaconing in 1939, one at LaVale in 1956 and the other in Grantsville, in Garrett County in 1960.

Watch Shop To Specialize With Timing

"The House of Watches," is the name chosen by John Newcomer, 11 Euclid Place, who plans to open a place of business in the Searstown Shopping Center.

Presently he is the operator of the Newcomer Time Shop and Jewelry Store, 14 Baltimore Street, and decided to specialize in repair and timing work only at the Searstown location.

Mr. Newcomer plans to maintain his present store on Baltimore Street which his wife will manage. The sale of jewelry and watches will continue at that store.

He maintained a business at 215 Virginia Avenue which was taken over by his son, Robert, when Mr. Newcomer established the Baltimore Street business in 1959.

Robert, who is a graduate of Fort Ashby High School, learned the watchmaker trade from his father who learned the precision trade 23 years ago in New York City.

Mr. Necomer also worked in the importing of watch movements and was an employe of the Hamilton Watch Company, Lacaster, Pa. before deciding to settle in the Cumberland area.

The father and son team will work together in the new location according to present plans. They will specialize in the repair of wrist and pocket watches, industrial time clocks, tower clocks and other timing pieces.

Mr. Newcomer remarked that the new location will measure about 15 feet by 40 feet.

Gas Station Service Will Be Complete

You won't be able to have a motor installed in "the old buggy" at the new Sears Automotive Center on Winchester Road but you can have major repair and replacement jobs done, purchase gasoline and oil and auto supplies including a crib for Junior to travel in during those long-awaited summer pleasure trips.

The new service station with the latest modern automobile maintenance equipment and up-to-date equipment section will be open for business when Searstown Shopping Center is officially opened on May 1.

Manager of the automotive center will be Joseph W. Beck, who comes to Cumberland from the East Liberty section of Pittsburgh, Pa. where he has been an employe of Sears, Roebuck and Company.

About 25 employes will be at your service at the newest service station in the Cumberland area, according to Mr. Beck, who said All-State premium and regular gasoline will be sold from the station's four pumps.

Inside the garage section of the service station are two hydraulic lifts for oil and lubrication work, muffler and exhaust pipe replacements.

There is also an alignment rack and frame lift for brake work and parts work in the front end of your automobile.

Sears Roebuck have motors in stock although they are to be installed as in the past at a Cumberland area garage, said Mr. Beck.

The center will have a complete line of automotive stock including tires, safety belts, cushions, top carriers, auto replacement parts, and baby cribs. Motor bikes also are on sale.

The gas islands will be open from 7 a.m. until 9:30 p.m., according to Mr. Beck, who said the station will be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Mitch Miller Almost Split Personality

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Almost everyone knows that Mitch (Sing Along) Miller learned to play the oboe while he was in short pants and that his beard is 20 years old, but here are some things you may not know about him.

He lives in a 200-year-old house.

He's 51 years old.

He may sing "Bye, Bye Blackbird" on television but he likes Bach and Mozart better.

His favorite television show is "Bonanza."

He has three children.

He likes to mess around in the kitchen broiling steaks.

It might also be noted that his herky-jerky style of leading his singing group is not a congenital disorder of the nervous system. The flapping arms and bobbing head are equivalent to Lawrence Welk's "Uh, one; uh, two; uh, three."

Almost Split Personality

Miller, in fact, is almost a split personality. One part of him is devoted to classical music and a Manhattan apartment. Another part of him digs singalong and lives in the country.

His home is in Rockland County, N. Y., located at Stony Point, about 10 miles south of West Point along the Hudson river.

Mitch is enormously proud of the fact that the old brick and wood homestead was built in 1750 by colonial gentry who had not begun to think of New England tea parties and revolution. The basement and four of the original rooms are in excellent condition. But, of course, Mitch has made several additions.

"Some of the logs that were put into the place more than 200 years ago are so hardened that they can't be dented with an ax," he says.

The NBC-TV star bought the place and its surrounding 20 acres in 1940 for a trifling $8,000. Today he says it is worth $75,000—but not for sale.

Ear Brilliantly Attuned

Miller, whose ear is brilliantly attuned to popular tastes, is the first to admit he is not essentially a video "personality."

He is on leave of absence from Columbia Records where he was one of the most successful "A and R men" in recording history. To the uninitiated, that means artists and repertory man—the guy who decides what songs will be recorded and who will record them.

Under his aegis Columbi prospered mightily for years.

This sort of versatility in the world of show biz frequently is accompanied by out-sized ego.

Miller is the exception. He is an enormously friendly man with a ready sense of humor. He also is approachable by fans, strangers and Millers of all sorts who claim kin ties.

Perhaps his close contact with the public is responsible for Mitch's longtime genius for waxing an unbroken string of recorded hits. That, and his deep love of music.

His offspring, Andrea, 22; Margaret, 18; and Mike, 16, all play instruments—piano, guitar and banjo. Together and singly the entire family sings around the house but, fortunately, without Papa Miller's gyrating techniques as leader.

Miller Punctilious

Miller is punctilious in the execution of his show and grows wrathful when advised that a studio audience would improve his singalong.

"My philosophy is that laughter and applause in a studio audience is an insult to those at home—excepting, of course, comedians," he avows. "To me a television show is devised for people at home; not in a theater.

"We let the show set the mood for the people who watch and sing along with us, and we're going to keep it that way."

For the record, Mitch was born in Rochester, N. Y., and while still in his teens played the oboe with the Rochester Philharmonic and the Syracuse Symphony. He also oboed it up with Percy Faith, Andre Kostelanetz and the Budapest Quartet.

And if that beard of his bugs you, ignore rumors that it covers a huge mole or a tattoo or a mermaid.

Mitch grew the beard because he thought it befitted a classical musician. Also, both his grandfathers wore beards. And finally, for those who care, his chin whiskers were copied from a portrait of Emir Feisal. But then Emir Feisal is another story altogether.

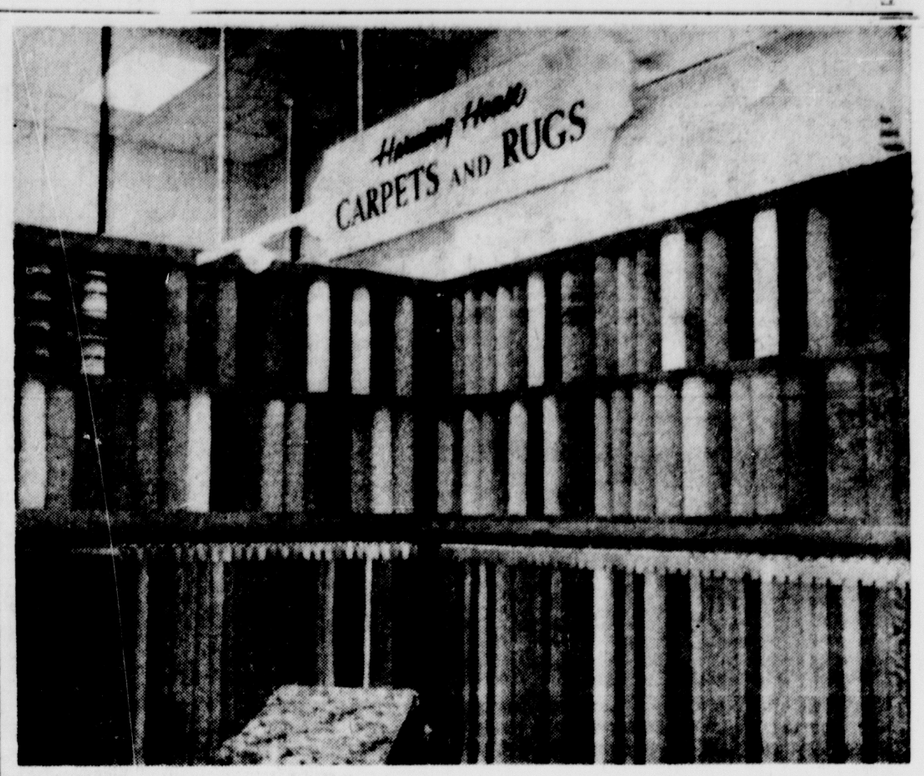

Swallowed Evidence

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Police seeking to crack a ring that was looting parking meters discovered vital evidence in the stomach of suspect Ildefoso V. Delgado.

An X-ray revealed a stolen parking meter key inside Delgado's stomach. Officers said he swallowed it when discovered loitering suspiciously near a row of meters.

KITCHEN CENTER—Whether its mother shopping for replacement of a utensil, or dad just browsing, the household department at Searstown shopping center is certain to fascinate the shopper. Everything imaginable for use in the house is featured in the department, ranging from items used each day to those for special occasions or just plain decorative purposes.

FASHION FABRICS—The carpet and rug department at Searstown shopping center will be magnet for persons interested in redecorating their homes. Carpets and rugs are offered in a riot of colors and styles, in line with the firm's emphasis on fashion merchandise in home furnishings.

CUMBERLAND (LAVALE) MD.

Sears Shopping Center Move Invites Employes' Nostalgia

Regardless of how hard they try, officials of Sears-Roebuck will never be able to completely empty the old three-story Baltimore Street store.

No doubt they'll get all merchandise removed, what with removal sales and transfers they have conducted. But, even with only bare walls visible to the observer, there will be something else left behind for at least four people—something they'll be able to find should they return to the old store years from now, providing it still stands.

What could be found by them would be invisible to anyone else, yet significant and meaningful to John M. Gornall, J. Kenneth Turner, Miss Lorena A. Burke and Miss Dorothy Judy.

Memories Important

Virtually all of their working adulthoods have been spent in employment at the Baltimore Street mart, and their memories of the part it played in their lives could not help but to fill every corner on every floor, from baseboard to ceiling, wherever they look.

Despite the role the store has played for them, each of the four anxiously anticipated the move to Searstown Shopping Center on Winchester Road. But, perhaps, Miss Burke, cashier and payroll clerk, summed it up best when she said: "This has been my home."

Together, these four represent 104 years of Sears service. The seniority parade is led by Gornall, of 775 MacDonald Terrace, who made April Fool's Day, 1935, his day of wisdom in launching his 28-year Sears sales career.

Gornall, at 61, the oldest employe both from the standpoint of years and seniority, is followed by Turner, age 53, of 50 Utah Avenue, a man whose love for selling is clearly discernible in his conversation. This affection for catering to consumers' needs has had plenty of time to grow since Turner's first day with Sears, also in 1935.

"Second Generation"

Miss Burke, of 234 Columbia Street, stands third in the seniority line, her birth into the Sears family taking place in June of 1938.

Miss Judy, a resident of 30 Greene Street, vividly recalls the relative ease with which she began Sears employment on May 11, 1940, just a day after she filled out an application after coming to Cumberland from Franklin, W. Va. She began in the hardware department, where she remains today.

Just as teachers who discover one day that they are teaching the second generation of the same family, all four of these Sears devotees speak with an aura of pride when they discuss their "second generation selling."

For instance, Gornall, who has two married and university-educated sons (John, of McLean, Va., and Robert, a senior at West Virginia University), spent 27 of his 28 years in the furniture and rugs department, having been transferred last year to auto accessories.

"Frequently," he said, "I sold furniture to newly-married children of couples who bought their first furniture from me back when they were married."

Steady Customers

Along these lines, Miss Judy recalled an incident which occurred just last week. She said a minister and his wife came into the store and asked if she recognized them. "I recognized their faces, she beamed, "but I couldn't place them." The minister then told Miss Judy that they bought a lawnmower from her 15 years ago prior to their transfer from Cumberland.

Then, too, all four have customers who have been dealing with them ever since their first days with Sears, much like patients who refuse to change doctors.

Three of the four, the exception being Miss Judy, began working for Sears when it was located in the building now housing Peskin's store, known by some as the old Holland Furniture Store, for which, incidentally, Miss Burke also worked. Then, the Sears manager was John Mordock. Sears moved up the street around the latter part of 1939.

Each of the four speaks of his/her employment in terms of belonging to the Sears family, not a random choice of words when they utter them.

Family Feeling

Turner, manager of the plumbing and heating department, qualified the term when he said "We're just like a big, close-knit family." His description was readily echoed by the others. Turner, father of three married children and grandfather of six, has additional reason to speak of the Sears' "family." His younger son, coincidentally, works in the plumbing and heating department of Sears' store in Lancaster, Ohio.

Unanimous in their opinions that the Sears move to the suburbs is congruent with the retail business trend, the only piece of apprehension was echoed by Turner who said he hoped the "one big family" employe atmosphere won't be lost in the more spacious shopping center store.

The present Sears employment mark is 175 persons, and Miss Burke, who has spent most of her employment in the clerical field, recalls when it was about 30. The new store will employ approximately 300.

Praise Clientele

With their accumulative 104 years service, these long-time employes have encountered about as many different types of people as the number of goods they've sold. Even with the inescapable run of chronic complainers, they speak singly in their praise of Cumberland area clientele.

Turner fitted the unanimous feeling toward their customers with, "We have as nice a clientele as there is in any part of the country. By and large, you won't find nicer people."

With an attractive company retirement policy (personnel can retire as early as age 55 with 25 years service) inviting each of the four, it is doubtful that any of them will even begin to match their old store employment record in the new location. But each is anxious to be a part of Sears "biggest change" in its Cumberland history.

And, no matter what the future holds for Sears in the area's future, it can safely be said that these four will look back upon the store's past with a feeling that they contributed in no small measure to Cumberland's business community.

Sunglass Modes

NEW YORK (UPI) — While sunglasses come in all shapes and sizes, studies made by the National Notion Association point to sectional preferences.

The South and Southwest prefer the pixies or small sunglasses; the Far West, the very large glasses; California prefers the black and other dark - hued frames; and in the state of Washington there is an overwhelming preference for white frames.

Crime Spree

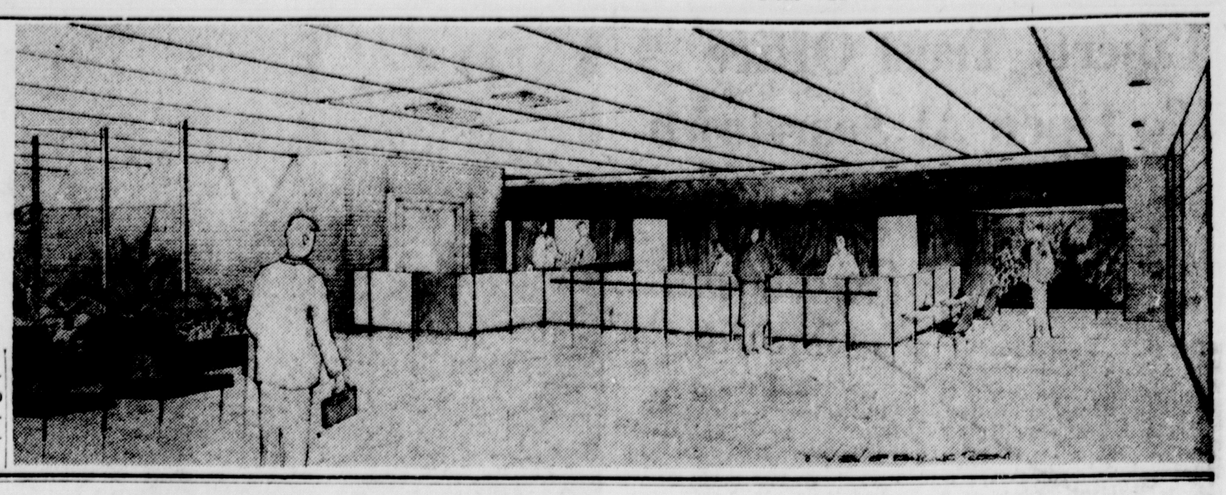

ASHLAND, Ore. (UPI) —Ashland police recounted the crimes of a recent weekend. A wash basin was stolen from a service station wall and $8 worth of soda pop was taken from a vending machine.

And the pond in Lithia Park was dyed green, which is "routine," police said.

FOR MEN ONLY—The new Searstown shopping center is correctly called a "family store," and men of the area will be able to deck themselves out in the latest fashions in slacks, sport coast and suits.

NEW BANK BRANCH — An architect's conception of how the new branch of the Liberty Trust Company in the Searstown Shopping Center is shown above. The branch is the fourth to be established since the founding of the Liberty Trust in 1920, according to Denton A. Fuller, president. Its operations will be supervised by Cameron L. Otto, assistant vice president of The Liberty Trust, who also is in charge of the LaVale branch.

Gypsies originally were a low-caste people of India, related to a tribe of musicians and rope-makers, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

FOUNDERS OF FIRM — Richard W. Sears, left, was a youthful station agent in North Redwood, Minn., in 1886 when he accepted a shipment of watches refused by a local jeweler. Alvah C. Roebuck, right, was a watchmaker in Hammond, Ind., when he answered a want-ad placed by Sears, who eventually sold the repaired watches to other agents, thus launching what was to become one of this country's most famous partnerships, Sears, Roebuck and Company.

Israel Land Of Contrasts With Varieties Of Peoples

By MURRAY J. BROWN
United Press International

NAZARETH, Israel (UPI) — Israel is a land of contrasts and no visit could be complete without a tour of the fertile northern Galillee and the arid Negev desert in the south.

While barely 8,000 square miles in area, Israel offers varieties of climate, terrain and peoples.

The Negev is hot and dry with a lunar-like landscape of bare brown hills and sands. Outside of the artificially-irrigated lands of the few pioneer Jewish Kibbutzim (settlements), there is little vegetation except scarce patches of wiry desert growth such as cactus.

Here the burnoosed, robed Bedouin still lives in black goatskin tents like his forefathers, setting up his encampment wherever he can find water and fodder for his flocks of sheep, goats and camels.

But even the desert-wise Bedouins stay clear of the Dead Sea region, more than 1,200 feet below sea level and the lowest point on earth. Temperatures reach 140 degrees (f.) in the summer months and rain never falls at the traditional site of the sinful city of Sodom. Nothing lives beneath the strikingly blue waters of the sea which has a greaer salinity than the Great Salt Lake in Utah.

Many Sights to Behold

"Modern" Sodom consists of the camps of workers at the huge chemical salts extraction plant and other industrial projects, and a roadside stop named "Lot's Wife's Cafe."

A short way up the road skirting the sea is the odd-shaped formation known as "Lot's Wife" jutting up from the hills. The wife of Lot, according to the Bible, was turned into a pillar of salt for disobeying God by looking back at the destruction of Sodom.

Drive westward up the steep winding road carved in the mountainside to Beersheba, and head north to the Galilee and it is like entering a different world.

The cool and fertile Galilee is a profusion of varicolored wild flowers, olive groves and orchards, vineyards, lush farmlands, and grass-carpeted and wooded valleys and hills. Well-fed cattle, sheep and cattle graze on the unfenced flats and slopes.

The Galilee also is the center of Israel's Arab Christian population as well as of the Druzes, the Arab sect which reveres Jethro, the father-in-law of Moses. Except for the traditional headress, most of the Arabs wear modern western-type clothing.

The region has many historical and biblical associations. Nazareth has been a Christian center and place of pilgrimage for more than 16 centuries.

"Mary's Well," where the Mother of Jesus came to draw water, is still in use.

Grotto Nearby

Nearby is the Grotto which the Gospel says is where the Angel Gabriel told Mary she would bear the Son of God. A new Basilica of the Annunciation, which will be the largest church in the Middle East, is being constructed over the shrine — the fourth since 352 A.D.

A flight of worn stone steps leads down to the Grotto of St. Mary where, on a flower-bedecked ancient altar is inscribed in Latin: "Here The Word Was Made Flesh."

A short walk away is the Church of St. Joseph — the main church of Nazareth's Roman Catholic Arabs — over the cave that tradition says was the home and carpenter shop of Jesus, Mary and Joseph.

There are numerous other shrines and historical sites in Galilee. On the Sea of Galilee is Tiberias, built by Herod the Great as a winter resort because of its salubrious climate and hot springs. The old Roman baths are still there and Tiberias is still a popular spa and resort.

Nearby is Mt. Tabor, traditional site of the Transfiguration; Cana, where Jesus performed the miracle of the water and wine; the Mount of the Beatitudes where he delivered the Sermon on the Mount; and Tabgha, site of the multiplication of the loaves and fishes. A simple church has been built over a colored mosaic depicting the miracle of the loaves and fishes.

At the northern end of the sea is Capernaum and the preserved ruins of a 1,900-year-old synagogue said to have been built by the Centurion whose servant was healed by Jesus.

Ex-Movie Star Happy Housewife

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press International

NEAUPHLE - LE - CHATEAU, France (UPI) — Deanna Durbin, the sub-deb Hollywood movie star of the '30's, is happy as a suburban housewife and has no plans to appear in films again, according to her husband.

"She doesn't want any comeback, she wants to go on living a useful and happy life," former French film director Charles David said.

The now 40-year-old star of "Three Smart Girls" and "One Hundred Men And A Girl" devotes her time to rearing her two children, traveling and enjoying life, David said.

Producer Joe Pasternak, who was credited with turning the chubby - cheeked Deanna into a world star at 13, recently visited the Davids at their home in this tranquil community about an hour's drive from Paris.

Pasternak later was quoted as saying "she's on her way back. When I find a good script for her, she'll come back."

Husband Is Amused

But Deanna's husband laughed. "Everytime after Joe visits us we get these reports," he said. "Joe tells us he wants to send scripts, and Deanna says, 'I'll be glad to read any script you send, but I won't act in it'.

"He always asks her, 'are you happy?' and when she says, yes', he says jokingly, 'I wish you weren't because then you'd make another picture for me'.

"Of course, nobody can say what will happen 20 years from now. She says she never will act again, but I say that at this time she has no plans to work in films. She liked acting, but never the publicity and lack of privacy that went with it."

The golden - throated Miss Durbin seldom sings now except when their son, 11 - year - old Peter, does his piano lessons. She also has a daughter, Jessica, 17, by her first husband, U. S. film producer Felix Jackson. David said his wife recently teased Jessica, "why, when I was your age I already had worked for four years."

Busy At Home

Taking care of the children, shopping, planning menus and overseeing the housekeeping of their cook and gardener take most of the ex-star's time, her husband said.

The Davids often attend the theater and visit art museums in Paris. Recently the former star was seen in a Paris department store, chic and smiling, looking very much like the sparkling-eyed girl whose voice used to win her $150,000 film contracts.

In the '30's and '40's Deanna Durbin was a household name in nearly every country, including Soviet Russia. There was hardly a sub-teen girl who didn't wear her hair parted in the middle and pulled back at each temple in the Durbin style.

Her marriage to Jackson was a major Hollywood event but ended in divorce. She finally ended her 13-year-old movie career in 1949 to marry David and retire in France.

Sears Aids Area

Sears, Roebuck and Company believes that a firm should buy its goods where it sells them — and practices what it preaches.

Following this principle has helped both the company and the communities it serves, Sears believes.

For the community it has meant that local dollars continue to circulate in the area, increasing job opportunities for residents, adding a payroll boost to the local economy.

But this policy often brings important benefits to Sears as well. With sources strategically located across the country, the company can reduce its transportation expenses and pass them on to customers. What's more, less time elapses between placing an order and receiving it. This results in lower inventory requirements and less frequent out-of-stock conditions.

Sears last year purchased merchandise valued at $28,290,000 from 124 manufacturers in Maryland.
